WORLD LEADER WELCOMED

Warm welcome was extended to External Affairs Minister, Lester Pearson when he arrived at Central Junior High School Tuesday night by Robert Mayhew, Mr. Mayhew, former Canadian ambassador to Japan and associate of Mr. Pearson in the Department of External Affairs, acted as chairman at the meeting. Mr. Pearson flew back to Vancouver today. (Times Photo.)

Mountain Could Be All-Time Tomb for Airliner Victims

Cold, grey Mount Slesse may be the permanent tomb for 62 persons killed in a TCA air crash Dec. 9, Canadian Press reports from Chilliwack indicated today.

All but given up for the present, and perhaps forever, is the attempt to bring out the bodies.

It was Canada's biggest aviation disaster when the North Star crashed into the mountain and exploded.

The airliner had set out for Calgary but turned back to Vancouver with engine trouble and had been missing until wreckage was discovered by a mountain climbers' expedition Sunday.

The men most intimately connected with the search for crash victims said the undertaking is too risky.

Mountaineers, RCAF air rescue experts and RCMP advised that Mount Slesse's 7,600-foot level, where the main portion of the plane was located, should not now be disturbed.

It's crumbling 25-foot ledge could well carry down the living with the dead.

SHATTERED BODIES

It was after mountaineers made an on-the-spot inspection of this ledge Tuesday—with its tragic store of partial limbs, fuselage fragments and engine pieces—that they announced their verdict.

The formal statements came at a coroner's inquiry at Chilliwack by coroner Glen McDonald of Vancouver.

"We have identified the aircraft," he said, "but not one person of the 62."

"The attorney-general's department is concerned and wants to bring the remains out."

'AWFUL LITTLE MEN'

'Copter Rescues Pseudo Searchers

Two would-be mountaineers who started out with 10 feet of rope and a bag of sandwiches to climb Mount Slesse were rescued by helicopter Tuesday, the Canadian Press reports from Chilliwack.

The pair entered the restricted area where searchers are examining the wreckage of a Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star which crashed last December with 62 persons aboard.

One of the pair was dressed in white coveralls and smooth-soled walking boots. Officials said the nearest he had ever got to climbing a mountain was looking at pictures.

Squad. Ldr. George Sheahan, in charge of RCAF operations on the mountain, said he saw the two waving frantically about a mile away from the wreckage.

They said they didn't want to be rescued but a helicopter was sent to them and they were told by the pilot: "Get in, you awful little men."

RCMP said the two hid their car about a mile from the restricted area, covering it with branches. They hiked through six miles of bush to the mountain base and were above the 5,000-foot level when rescued.

One of the two said they planned to spend the night on the mountain and continue their trek this morning.

One had a camera. He was trying to sell pictures of mountains to reporters.

"They must have been nuts," said an RCMP officer.

Canada Would Join In Open Skies Plan

LONDON (AP)—Canada today signified her willingness to participate in any aerial inspection plan which is made part of an international disarmament agreement.

Canadian delegate David Johnson told a closed meeting of the United Nations disarmament subcommittee his country would require only that the inspection plan be established on a fair and appropriate basis.

Johnson, at a subcommittee meeting which lasted only 30 minutes, did not specify what he considered the requirements of such a plan.

His statement, however, was believed to have in some measure increased the possibility of air inspection involving North America and Siberia.

Russia proposed April 30 that air inspection be established over huge areas of Siberia and the western United States and Alaska.

Wheat Payment

WINNIPEG (CP)—An average final payment of 11.912 cents a bushel to wheat producers for the 1955-56 crop year was announced today by the Canadian wheat board.

Pearson Denies Threat To U.K. in Suez Crisis

By PETER MURRAY

An unequivocal denial that Canada ever threatened "implicitly or explicitly"—to withdraw from the Commonwealth during the Suez crisis was made in Victoria Tuesday night by External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson.

Neither had Canada ever condemned or criticized, in the United Nations or Parliament, the armed intervention of Britain and France, Mr. Pearson asserted.

900 Attend

He spoke before an attentive audience of some 900 persons in Central Junior High School Auditorium.

They heard the most lucid description of Canada's role in world affairs ever given here.

Local Liberal candidates, Dr. F. T. Fairley and Alistair Fraser, spoke on the same platform. (See story, Page 36).

In his statesmanlike address, Mr. Pearson touched on all aspects of Canada's international position, but dwelt particularly on her relationships with the U.S. and the Commonwealth.

Independence

Because of the shift in world power, our alliance with the U.S. is taking on increasing importance. At the same time we must strive to maintain complete independence.

In the Commonwealth, Canada must do all she can to keep the family of nations—together with different interests—together.

"And the Commonwealth in its present form may be disastrously weakened if we think of it solely in terms of London," Mr. Pearson added.

In between the U.S. and the Commonwealth Canada must act as a "middle power," Mr. Pearson said, helping to iron out difficulties that arise.

Policy Detailed

Against that background, and Canada's obligations to the United Nations, Mr. Pearson carefully detailed the government's policy during last year's Suez crisis.

He noted there was "much heart-searching and difference of opinion" within both Canada and Great Britain over the events which took place.

The Commonwealth was divided "deeply and dangerously," he said.

At the outset, Canada felt that the armed intervention by Britain and France "at that time and in those circumstances" was unwise. It would not achieve the ends in view.

Hard Decision

Canada also regretted, Mr. Pearson said, that the action was taken without consultation with other members of the Commonwealth.

When the matter was referred to the U.N., the Canadian delegation was faced with a difficult decision.

"It was one of the very few occasions we had differed with them at the U.N. on major matters, but we did not take, or lead, any initiative against our friends."

Canada voted with the majority in the Assembly to place the matter on the agenda.

Answering criticism that Canada had voted with Russia against the United Kingdom on formation of a U.N. Emergency Force, Mr. Pearson said:

HIGHLIGHTS

Here are some of the high points of Mr. Pearson's address:

"Our foreign policy . . . must be Canada first, but it can never be Canada alone."

"Canada has undertaken commitments and accepted responsibilities in the international field which would not have even been considered in the '30s."

"The greatest Canadian national interest today is the maintenance and the strengthening of peace and security."

"American power . . . is now the major source of our military security, even though it is also at times the focus of our political anxieties."

" . . . the Atlantic coalition . . . is our greatest defence against aggression today and our strongest buttress of peace."

" . . . the United States cannot take, nor indeed can any other country take, Canada's support and help for granted."

" . . . the Communists' paramount and primary objective is to weaken and break up our Western coalition, and especially to split the rest of us from the United States."

"Our greatest difficulty of all . . . in Canadian foreign policy . . . arises when our Mother Country and our neighbor disagree."

"It is going to be a hard task to keep the Commonwealth family together . . . and Canada must do all she can to help in that task."

"Canada stands today respected among nations, as a country which has played a good part in the search for peace and in building up good relations between all peoples."

Free Passage Must Be Assured Commons Told

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan said today Israel's right of free passage through the Suez Canal "must be assured" and Britain will do everything possible to "see this happen."

He told the House of Commons Britain will act "through the United Nations and with our friends" to ensure that Israeli ships are allowed by Egypt to use the disputed waterway.

Ike Against Test by Force

(In Washington President Oct. 13. If Egypt observed her proposals, she would have "accepted a considerable measure of restriction."

The prime minister was speaking at the start of a debate on Britain's Suez policy, including the decision Monday to end a boycott of the canal.

Egypt's latest proposals, submitted to the UN last month, insist on Egyptian operation but promise to observe the 1888 convention guaranteeing passage.

Macmillan added, however, the Egyptian proposals were only a "unilateral declaration" which could be amended or withdrawn at will.

Such a decision, he said, would be a political one and would therefore violate the UN principle that the canal should be insulated from the politics of any country.

Macmillan said Egypt's latest proposals for operating the canal herself are not "very far" from the six Suez principles recommended by the UN last

Severe Test of Government Policy

The prime minister expressed the hope that all members would support the government in its decision to let British ships use the canal for the first time since it was reopened last month.

A small but extremely vocal faction within Macmillan's Conservative party has objected to the decision to resume using the canal and threatens to vote against the government.

The Labor party generally supports the decision but decries past British Suez policy. Opposition Leader Hugh Gaitskell opened the debate by declaring Britain had no alternative now but to "cut our losses and swallow our pride."

Macmillan reiterated there could be no real settlement which left uncontrolled authority in the hands of a single power or did not conform to UN principles.

"We shall continue to do everything we can in the coming months to secure a final settlement on these lines," he said.

The prime minister spoke after Gaitskell urged the West to recognize Russia as a Middle East power and to discuss with the Soviet Union the "basic problems" of the region.

Speaking of the government's plans for a conference in Rome with Egyptian representatives to settle financial questions, Gaitskell said "We should certainly have no illusions about our losses."

Egyptian assets in Britain amounted to just over £100,000,000.

Beck's $300,000 Unlisted Loans Called 'Stolen' By Probe Chief

(See also Page 3)

WASHINGTON (AP)—An insurance official testified today that Dave Beck did not list loans of $300,000-plus from the teamsters' union when making a financial statement in 1951.

Robert F. Kennedy, counsel to the Senate rackets investigating committee, commented: "It would therefore appear that the money was stolen rather than borrowed."

The Senate committee contends its evidence indicates Beck misused at least $300,000 of union funds. It has advanced the suggestion that Beck decided to call this money loans after income tax agents began investigating his tax returns.

A. M. Burke, a vice-president of the Occidental Life Insurance Company of California, identified a memorandum he had written for his files in which he said Beck, in a financial statement, had listed assets of $1,032,715 and liabilities of $234,000.

The memorandum said that in the statement Beck declined to give a statement of "salary and benefits."

Beck also was reported facing a new move to oust him from his union post, as AFL-CIO President George Meany planned to meet with a five-man teamsters' union committee considering Beck's union fate.

The AFL-CIO has suspended Beck from its high command, accusing him of bringing labor unionism into disrepute. The teamsters' union's public relations advisers are reported to have recommended his ouster from office in that group.

CAMPBELL RIVER GUIDE MISSING, FEARED DEAD

CAMPBELL RIVER—William Sutherland, 49, well-known fishing and hunting guide at Forbes Landing Hotel on Lower Campbell Lake, six miles north of here, was missing and feared drowned today in the lake.

He was on the float early Tuesday morning in front of the hotel putting engines in the boats. He failed to turn up that evening and his sister, Mrs. James Forbes, the hotel owner notified RCMP.

RCMP were dragging the lake today but their efforts were hampered by logs and debris in the water, result of logging operations.

TWO QUIT RACE IN WINDSOR

'Slush Fund' Needed to Carry Out Sacred Campaign, Say Candidates

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Two of the three Social Credit candidates in local ridings said today they have decided to withdraw from the federal election campaign.

In a joint statement, Archie L. Gillis, the party's choice in Essex East, and William F. Barton, named to contest Essex South, said their decision "in no way indicates a change or diminishment in our belief in the fundamental principles of Social Credit."

Their move was based on "the impossibility to condone actions, proposals and planks in the present program and platform which in our estimation are entirely out of line with the principles of Social Credit."

LACK OF MONEY

"Our decision has also been motivated by our inability to assume personal financial responsibility for a quite elaborate local program, which is the brainchild of the national association, and which could only be borne by candidates supported by a tremendous 'slush fund.'"

The third candidate is Richard Nelson Webster, who said he has no intention of withdrawing. He is in Essex West.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O God, we thank thee for another day: for the light and for the promised warmth of it. Help us to walk in the light and let it filter through to our minds. Help us to respond to the warmth clear through to our hearts. O God, we thank thee for another day; for Christ's sake. Amen.

FRANCE TO TAKE SUEZ ISSUE TO UN

PARIS (AP)—The French government, in a stormy session which saw Premier Guy Mollet try to resign, today decided to take the Suez Canal issue to the United Nations Security Council.

Mollet said France regards the present Egyptian terms for passage through the canal as "unacceptable."

France will make a "last appeal" to the Security Council for a canal statute conforming with the six principles for canal navigation which the council approved last October.

Prince Rupert Speech Cancelled by Bennett

Premier Bennett has cancelled his scheduled speaking engagement in Prince Rupert Friday night. He will speak in Powell River instead.

The change in plans was brought about by the surprise withdrawal of Social Credit nominee Arthur Murray from the Skeena riding race.

Mr. Murray did not file his candidate's papers on Monday, which was the nomination deadline. He refused to give any reason.

The premier will address a public meeting in Nanaimo tonight.

Pay Raise Within Cabinet's Power

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Government Employees' Association says Premier Bennett's government could vote civil service wage increases immediately by order-in-council.

The association issued a statement today in replying to a statement Monday by the determined by Canadian interests and if by some chance, and it very rarely happens, Russia, for consideration of its own, happens to be on the same side that we are, is that any reason why we, or anybody else, should change sides?"

As to the assertion by national Social Credit Leader Solon Low that Prime Minister St. Laurent had sent a telegram to Prime Minister Eden threatening withdrawal from the Commonwealth, Mr. Pearson stated emphatically:

"No such telegram was sent."

Mr. Eden had sent a telegram to Mr. St. Laurent outlining the United Kingdom position in the dispute, and the prime minister had replied in another telegram giving the views of the Canadian government.

In summary, Mr. Pearson said Canada's overall policy in the dispute was to attempt to bring about a cease-fire which would deal with the problems of the Middle East in such a way as to prevent fighting breaking out again.

Go on Trying

"I confess that we have not yet been very successful in achieving this ultimate political objective," he said. "But we must go on trying."

Mr. Pearson described U.S. military power as the "foundation of the collective defence of the free world."

The growing might of Communist imperialism—and it is still growing—should make us conscious of the danger we would be in if we did not have this power, he said.

No two countries in the world have closer relations than Canada and the U.S.

Folly to Ignore

"There may be some who regret this," Mr. Pearson said, "but it would be folly to ignore it."

Canada insists that her partnership with the U.S. is always based on mutual respect.

Sometimes this results in our relations with the U.S. being "difficult, complicated and test-ing."

Mr. Pearson was loudly applauded when he stated:

"They (the U.S.) must realize that if we were once sensitive about Canada being considered merely a colonial extension of Britain across the waters, we are now even more sensitive about being considered merely a northern extension of the United States across the un-guarded boundary."

When differences occur between the U.S. and Britain, Canada has no alternative but to make the "hard choice" between the two positions, or take up a separate position of our own.

Mr. Pearson concluded:

"The test of the success of a nation's foreign policy is its willingness to accept and discharge responsibility for the maintenance of peace; its success in protecting the national interest, and its prestige and position in the world."

"The present government has not, in my view, failed in its effort to meet this test."

SNOW UNSTABLE

Paddy Sherman, a mountain climber and Vancouver newspaper reporter, testified it was too hazardous at present to get "one single identifiable" body out of the wreck. He didn't think it possible that there were large enough remains of one person to make positive identification.

Another climber, Roy Mason, said "the snow mass is too unstable. It was avalanching while we were there."

It was suggested periodic checks should be made and another attempt could be started about the end of July to bring the remains out.

TCA Captain Alan Clarke, 35, his co-pilot, stewardess and 59 passengers died on a stormy Sunday night when the west-bound North Star crumpled up against the peak, 90 miles north-east of Victoria.

Until Sunday the plane's disappearance was a mystery.

PERMISSION NOT GIVEN

The RCAF said the returning airliner was flying on the extreme south or left edge of a 10-mile-wide air route. At first it was understood that the pilot had been given permission to descend to the 8,000-foot level from 14,000 feet. However, a qualified source in Vancouver denied Tuesday that the pilot was given permission to descend to 8,000 feet.

Wreckage was embedded in a niche about 150 feet from the giant spire which has a precipice of gaunt, vertical granite 3,000 feet high.

Viewers of the peak estimate that if the pilot had gone only

30 or 40 feet to right or left he would have cleared the mountain.

Elfrida Pigou, a 100-pound woman, one of the two climbers who located the wreckage Sunday, was also a member of the party which made the ascent Tuesday to the rocky ridge where the main portion of the plane was found.

The party had been asked to be on the look-out for money in large denominations. D. D. Murphy, transport department official, said relatives of a Chinese passenger said he was carrying $80,000 in a money belt around his waist.

Sherman said only one quarter and two cents were found. They did not disturb the bodies to look for personal effects.

Mayflower 1,300 Miles From Africa Coast

PENZANCE, England (AP)—Mayflower II, the Pilgrim Fathers' replica ship, reported Tuesday that she was about 1,300 miles west of the African coast.

Cmdr. Alan Villiers radioed: "Running in very light trade winds. All well." The little wooden sailing ship left England April 20 on her voyage to the United States.

The Mayflower's position at noon Tuesday was 22 degrees 22 minutes north, 37 degrees seven minutes west, Villiers said.

Private Power Deal Never Ruled Out

NEW WESTMINSTER — Fisheries Minister James Sinclair said Tuesday he had never ruled out the possibility of federal aid in private development of Columbia River hydro.

How a "growth company" grows

Are straight hot dogs better than curved ones?

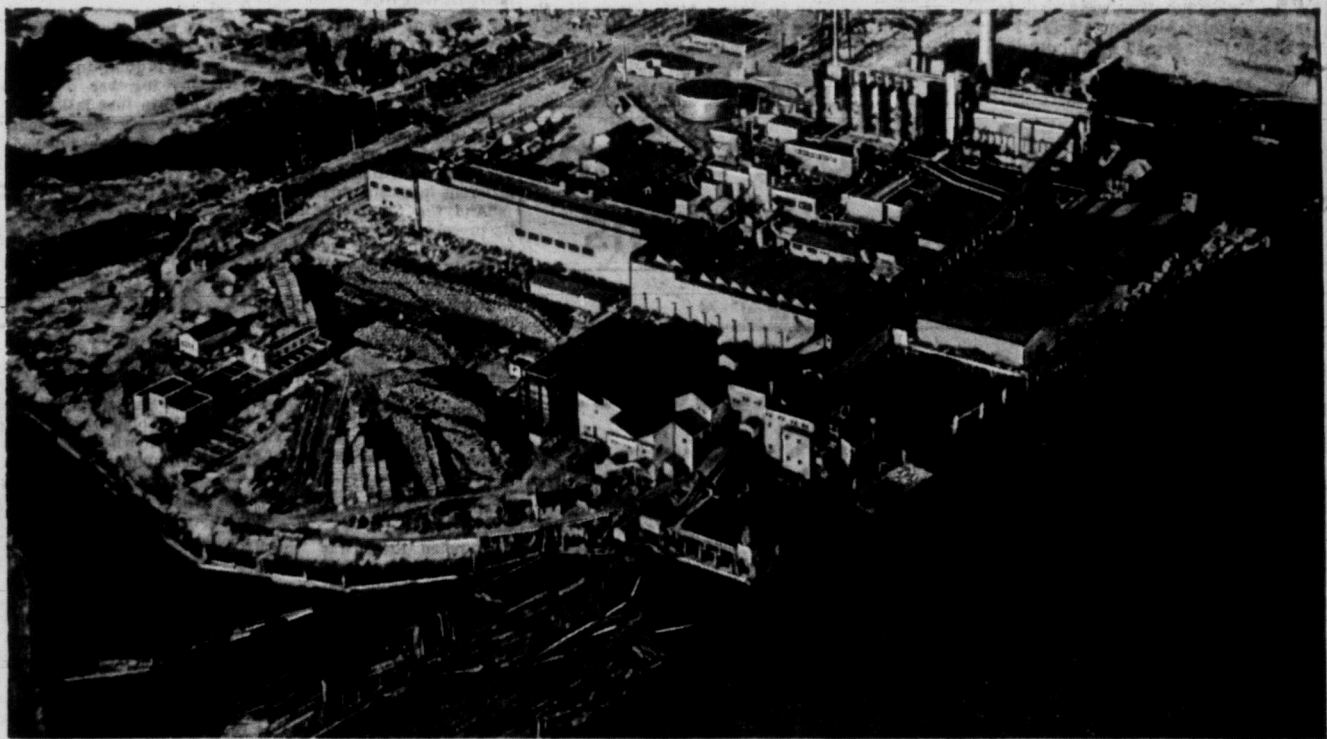

Answer: They're both mighty good eating. But the straight hot dog is skinless—and won't vary a jot in taste, color or texture. That's because it's shaped in special, sanitary cellulose casings. And it's the casing (stripped off after smoking) that makes straight "dogs" lower in cost, consistent in deliciousness.

What's in it for you? Chemical cellulose for sausage making is only a fraction of Rayonier's growth business. But this versatile raw material can actually keep many sausage meats several cents a pound cheaper on your butcher's shelf! That's because cellulose speeds sausage production and delivers to you wholesome, appetizing, fresh meats.

Thus, with ever better cellulose, Rayonier assures you real value in over 500 different products ranging from miracle fibers to hot dogs. In this way and others, Rayonier grows.

Looking behind Rayonier's growth: Some facts for the business-minded

A growing world commodity. The technical arts of the cellulose casing maker and the meat packer—plus the wizardry of cellulose chemistry like Rayonier's—must be backed up by big plants such as our Grays Harbor Division at Hoquiam, Wash., a 135,000-ton capacity mill. Here special cellulose for sausage casing is produced along with six other diversified products.

Since 1951 close to $70,000,000 have been poured into this plant and seven others in the U. S. A. and Canada, for expansion and modernization alone. Thus we are ready for new, rising demands from such growth industries as tire cord, miracle fibers and plastics. This growth-mindedness tells why Rayonier now supplies every cellulose-using country in the free world.

For still wider markets. Intensive cellulose research at three research stations in Canada and the United States keeps Rayonier out front in cellulose chemistry, often years ahead of customers' requirements for new or improved raw materials.

For example: research has recently brought in several significant developments including new silvichemicals, a field promising Rayonier additional, diversified growth in world markets.

Conservation for growth. Trees are our basic raw material. To assure our growth, and our readiness for the future's bigger demands, Rayonier conducts all-inclusive conservation programs in the Northwest, the Southeast and in Canada.

At right, we harvest mature hemlock, vital to sustained yield. Too, our advanced forestry contributes to soil conservation and abundant wild life. Thus sound timber management serves Rayonier's growth.

Bulganin Bids For All-Power Summit Parley

LONDON (AP)—Soviet Premier Bulganin made a new bid today for an international summit conference to discuss world problems. He said such a meeting had to be "properly prepared."

Bulganin made the statements in a speech at a Soviet-Mongolian friendship meeting in the Kremlin. It was broadcast by Moscow radio.

"There are many things the leaders of the Western and Eastern countries can talk about on the condition, of course, that the meetings are properly prepared," he said.

Hits Eisenhower Plan

Bulganin described the Eisenhower doctrine as the "main source of unrest and complication of the situation" in the Middle East.

He referred to the "honest warnings we have sent to the European countries who are members of the North Atlantic bloc of the heavy consequences likely to be brought about by the policy of the United States—leading power in the bloc."

The situation in the Middle East still gave rise to certain concern.

"The situation in this region has become more complicated with the foreign-inspired events in Jordan and the activities of the United States in the eastern Mediterranean."

NO SPECIAL INTEREST

"As far as we are concerned, we have no special interest in the Middle East—or in any other part of the world—other than the safe-guarding of peace and giving every people the right to resolve its own fate."

Soviet proposals to come to an agreement over disarmament and the banning of atomic weapons were "warmly supported in the Arab East, but unfortunately did not have the agreement of London, Washington and Paris."

"The Soviet government warned them last year of the danger of resorting to force. There are only two solutions—war or peace and we are for peace, and are sure that the peoples will not allow the politicians to continue balancing on the brink of war."

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today the whole matter of Russia's limited "open skies" disarmament proposal is still under earnest study.

Where the study will end up, he told his press conference, he could not possibly predict.

Eisenhower's remarks were keyed to State Secretary Dulles' suggestion Tuesday that Alaska, northern Canada and Siberia might be a good starting place for testing an aerial inspection agreement with Russia.

The original Russian proposal would have opened up most of the western part of the United States to aerial inspection in trade for large sections of Siberia. Dulles said the two areas could not be equated.

One of Four Missing Teamster Witnesses Found—Subpoenaed

ELLENBURG, Wash. (AP)—Norman Gessert, sought for questioning by the Senate labor racket committee about the financial dealings of teamsters' union boss Dave Beck, Sr., was served with a subpoena here early today.

The handing of the subpoena to Gessert, a cousin of Beck's wife, ended a cat-and-mouse game that extended over wide areas of the Pacific northwest the last month. Gessert was one of four men including Beck's son, who had been reported in British Columbia during that period. The others still are missing.

The subpoena was served by Deputy United States Marshal Jim Clark on Gessert after he was nabbed by Ellensburg police as he tried to elude Clark and other federal officers in a high-speed auto chase through the streets of this city 114 miles southeast of Seattle. Clark served a subpoena on Gessert Monday but Gessert ignored it because the subpoena directed him to report to the committee May 8. Gessert vanished.

Clark located Gessert Tuesday night at an Ellensburg motel, registered under the name of Peterson. Gessert refused to answer the door despite repeated demands that he come out.

Clark decided to "sweat it out" until Gessert emerged. Shortly after midnight Gessert dashed out of the motel room, leaped into his car and sped away.

Federal officers pursued Gessert, who was picked up by Ellensburg police on a speeding charge.

Taken to the city hall on the speeding charge, Gessert refused to identify himself, although a wallet found on the floor of the patrol car in which he was taken to jail contained a driver's licence issued to Gessert.

Released after posting $15 bail on the speeding charge, Gessert said he would go to Washington to testify before the committee after conferring with his lawyer, Samuel B. Bassett of Seattle.

Queen, Duke May Be First To Sail Seaway

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP)—The Royal yacht bearing Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh may be among the first vessels using the St. Lawrence Seaway when it is opened in 1959, Prime Minister St. Laurent suggested Tuesday.

He referred to planned seaway ceremonies at an open-air rally in this southwestern Ontario city. Informing his audience that he knows the Queen "will be very happy" to attend the opening, he added:

"And I hope that she and the duke will be among the first persons using the seaway aboard the Royal yacht."

The Answer to Suez

WHEN MR. PEARSON CAME TO Victoria yesterday he knew that many people here condemned his Suez policy. It was characteristic of him that he did not try to evade this issue, but the unhappy facts or apologize for his own clear stand at the United Nations.

In perhaps the greatest speech of his career (we are not likely to hear its equal in this town for a long time) Mr. Pearson took his audience through every step of last autumn's crisis.

When he was finished, most of his audience, we think, would agree that one of the strongest arguments for keeping the present government in office is the opportunity to keep Mr. Pearson in charge of our foreign affairs.

Point by point, Mr. Pearson recited the public record to demolish the charge that in some fashion the Canadian government let Britain down at Suez. In fact, though he did not say so, he was the one man in those days of confusion who knew how to save Britain, the Commonwealth and the Atlantic Alliance from an unthinkable disaster.

For example, the loose charge that Canada voted at the United Nations with Russia and against Britain was destroyed out of hand.

Canada, as Mr. Pearson said, voted with all members of the United Nations, save three, to allow the United Nations to discuss the Suez crisis. How could it have voted otherwise if the crisis was to be solved at all and the Alliance, incidentally, saved from total disruption?

The United States then proposed a cease-fire. Canada regarded that step as essential but could not support the American resolution since it provided no method of settling the dispute after firing had ceased. It therefore abstained on this vote.

If it had opposed the resolution, of course, it would have destroyed its chance—so brilliantly seized by Mr. Pearson a few hours later—to propose a United Nations' intervention.

As Mr. Pearson says, it is as absurd to contend that Canada voted "with Russia" because they happened for once to be on the same side of a United Nations resolution as to say that Britain voted "with Russia" because they both voted against the cease-fire resolution. But the events in Suez can be judged correctly only if we ask, as Mr. Pearson asked last night, what would have happened if the United Nations had not intervened under Canada's urging.

Had the fighting continued, had Britain and France occupied all Egypt—as they would have been compelled to do if they were to hold the Canal—then assuredly the Alliance would have been broken beyond repair, the Asiatic members of the Commonwealth probably would have withdrawn, most of Asia and Africa would have been alienated and Russia would have been given its perfect excuse for invading the Middle East as its spurious protector.

These catastrophes were avoided and while the credit, of course, cannot go to any one man, Mr. Pearson undoubtedly performed, without preparation or even advance warning, Canada's greatest contribution to peace and a great contribution also to Britain and the Commonwealth.

If all Canadians do not appreciate that fact, the British government does. Mr. Macmillan's public statement of thanks, quoted by Mr. Pearson, should settle all doubts on that score. Britain and the Commonwealth never had a better friend than the Canadian foreign minister.

His thoughtful concept of Canada's proper role in the Commonwealth and the world unquestionably represents the will of the vast majority of Canadians. It is to work for harmony between the Commonwealth and the United States; to settle differences by friendly argument; always to protect Canada's true interests; and to build its future not as the satellite of any nation but as a community with its own separate way of life.

Mr. Pearson flew here to tell us these things in his own way, to set the record straight and to expose the distortions of fact that have recently disfigured the election campaign. In doing so, he lifted the national debate to a new plane.

Even opponents of the government who heard him last night will agree, we believe, that in him we have found a world statesman of first magnitude yet a human being quite unspoiled by the world's acclaim.

Hang On to the Park Land

OFFICIAL VICTORIA AND OFFICIAL SAANICH have different views on the city-owned property at Elk and Beaver Lakes.

Reeve Ash of Saanich thinks the city should dedicate it as a park, presumably without being paid for it. Mayor Scurrah wants to know why the city should.

In its present version, the inter-municipal squabble—or lack of agreement—seems to revolve around the question of compensation. Saanich, obviously, would like to have a park at no cost. Victoria, just as obviously, would like some return for its real estate.

The people of this community can survive this difference very nicely provided nothing is done with the land in the meantime.

Eventually it must become a park for the general enjoyment of people in Greater Victoria. We have too few areas of this kind in a district which is rapidly squeezing out park sites as commercial and private developments move in.

By all means let official Saanich and official Victoria argue about compensation.

But under no circumstances should either permit the loss of the open space whose value is recognized now and whose recreational worth will increase as the years go by.

Experience and Youth

HUNDREDS OF VICTORIANS at the large public meeting in Central Junior High School last night had an opportunity to hear the two Liberal candidates in this locality speak at some length.

The impression made by both was favorable. Dr. F. T. Fairley, seeking re-election as Victoria's member, is, of course, no stranger. Mr. Alistair Fraser, candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich, is no Johnny-come-lately.

Not only did he spend three years as a student at Shawinigan Lake Boys' School. He returned to this province following war service to study and practise law in Vancouver and Prince Rupert.

The appearance of the two candidates served admirably to illustrate a Liberal Party practice noted by Dr. Fairley. It has been and is the Liberal policy to assure the vitality of the party by bringing into it competent and able young men. Their influence extends to the cabinet, where appointments are made on the basis of ability, not on age, but with the accent on youth and vigor.

Dr. Fairley, with his record of excellent service to this community, and Mr. Fraser, on the platform Tuesday evening, served as examples of the balance this policy achieves in Liberal ranks.

B.C. and Federal School Aid

DR. J. M. THOMAS, ESQUIMALT-Saanich CCF candidate, has revived the argument that only Federal Government help "will spread the burden (of school costs) fairly and save the home-owner from the growing burden."

If Dr. Thomas is discussing the question of school costs throughout Canada, his position is sound. If he is suggesting that people living in British Columbia would benefit from federal payments, his position is not.

His argument falls down because of two facts. British Columbia pays more per pupil for education than any other province in Canada. And British Columbia is one of the rich provinces.

To get the money to make the grants, Ottawa would have to collect it from available sources. That means British Columbia, because it is wealthy, would have to pay the share of a rich province—more, for instance, than the maritimes.

Once the money was collected, even if it were distributed on a straight per-pupil grant, the poorer provinces, or those spending less per pupil than B.C. on education, would benefit at British Columbia's expense.

In other words, B.C.—whose citizens are Canadian taxpayers—would pay in more than it got out.

TRY IT FOR SIZE

By B. A. TOBIN

The Critical Point

"JUST been up to the police station," he said proudly. He was a bright-looking youngster of about 10 with the kind of face you see on YMCA or Boy Scout posters, and he had just tried to sell me a paper.

I showed him that I already carried one, but his personal news just had to be shared.

"Had to tell them about the kidnapper," he announced.

"That so?" I enquired.

"Yep," said the boy. "A fella tried to get me and my chum. Said he'd give me a bike if I came down to his house, but we didn't go. I told the police about it, and I've just been up there now. Had to give EVIDENCE."

His face lit up with a grin at the sheer importance of his role. It was for him, fortunately, the main point of the whole incident. He strode off down Government Street, a co-operator with the law, a citizen going about his business.

A few minutes later on Yates Street, youth and the law were again involved. A young fellow in a red jacket sped along the sidewalk like a man after a bus. A few yards behind him ran a policeman, holstered revolver bobbing at his hip, threading his way through the startled sidewalk crowd.

The youth reached a corner, hesitated a moment, turned and disappeared along the side of the building. At that moment an elderly man stepped out of a doorway right into the path of the officer. The old fellow went down, the policeman staggered a few paces but kept his feet. He looked back, saw the pedestrian was probably unhurt, and took up the chase.

Hot Pursuit

"Stop that fellow," the officer shouted. There was no one ahead but three women. He followed the fugitive around the corner.

A block behind him traffic was piling up around a vacant automobile parked in the centre of the street. A sidewalk crowd watched for new developments. There seemed to be some connection between the fugitive and the car, but my bus drove on and the excitement was left behind.

These stirring incidents occurred last Saturday afternoon within a few minutes of each other. Victoria is growing up, progressing, becoming a fine big city. If we can keep up the pace we'll soon be like other metropolises that make news of a sort.

I had never before seen a policeman chase a suspect through crowds of downtown shoppers on a Victoria street. Perhaps I never will again. But the incident, following quickly on the earlier encounter, seemed to me to be a warning signal.

A new community is growing up around us. It isn't the town of the old-timers—by whom I mean residents of only 25 or 30 years ago. In those days you knew almost everyone you saw on the city's streets. If they weren't friends or acquaintances they were at least familiar figures which you saw every day.

Then came the post-war period, when folk from all over Canada, indeed the world, flocked here, and the old chumminess disappeared. The streets took on a big-city impersonality; the familiar faces became oases in a desert of strangers.

Many of the newcomers became in turn good friends, but there were too many to know them all. Growing families added to the total. A special neighborliness had gone, never to return.

And now a new element has entered, another direct result of increasing community size. Some youths growing up in this environment have been affected by the disadvantages of a big city, distant though we are from the real horror of "dead ends" and "blackboard jungles."

Honor System

Someone once said that a city may be judged by whether newsboys can leave a pile of papers unattended on the curb with a tin lid for customers to drop the coins in. You used to see that quite often around Victoria streets, but not in big cities. I wonder if it could safely be done here today?

The fact seems to be clear, and it has been borne out in a hundred instances on this continent: the larger the city the poorer environment it is for young folk.

The modern machine for massed living, which we call a big city, is not the most suitable machine for producing well-balanced young people.

At some critical point in the enlargement of a community you reach a size where the advantages of group living are at a maximum and the disadvantages are at a minimum. From then on the former decrease and the latter increase.

I would say Victoria is somewhere around that critical point now.

FEELING THE PULSE

Economic theory is having a terrific race these days to keep up with economic fact. The gap between the two is probably largest in dealing with the problem of boom and slump. The traditional economic theorist facing this subject reminds one a little of the doctor taking someone's pulse. He sits with his patient's wrist in one hand and a watch in the other, and viewing both with an expression of increasing puzzlement finally bursts out: "Either you are dead or my watch has stopped—and I ought to tell you that my watch has always been pretty reliable so far."

As Our Readers See It

Central Saanich Truck

May I correct an impression which your recent short item on the return of the old Central Saanich fire truck to me may have created?

The truck was not "given" to the municipality. It was purchased at a cost of $800 by me, personally, while I was Central Saanich reeve and turned over to the municipality as its only piece of fire-fighting equipment.

Now the municipality has acquired new equipment. The council has not reimbursed me for the money I spent out of my own pocket, and, after argument, has realized that the truck is mine. It is now returning the equipment, stripped and depreciated. That is all.

I have dropped about $800 including interest, and the council expresses its thanks to me in a form of ridicule.

Such are the workings of petty local municipal politics.

Revenue From Garbage

I would like a few lines in your valuable paper to further the remarks of Mr. J. Bullivant as reported in the Times of May 4.

I saw a piece in a Journal of Sanitary Science, "The Sanitarian," March and April, 1937, published at Box No. 51, Denver 10, Colorado, U.S.A. On Page 210 under the heading "The Profitable Reclamation of Municipal Wastes," it stated the City of McKeesport, Pa., U.S.A., with a population of 50,000, manufactures its garbage into a product used for fertilizing the soil, and selling it under the trade name of "Orcoa" for $3.98 per 80 pound bag, and the process produces two pounds per capita per day.

Now if this can be done in McKeesport, Pa., surely we can have the same done here. Even if the city has to pay for the collecting and delivering the garbage to the plant, it would still be cheaper than dumping it at sea, or burying it in a landfill, and would leave our beaches free from trash that is washed up from the present way of garbage disposal.

Whither Indonesia?

Those of your readers who have ties yet with Indonesia or are otherwise genuinely interested in the way that republic is developing will appreciate the editorial "The Southeast Tentacle," May 10, even if they were aware of the situation there through other sources.

What the editorial does not mention is that the United Nations—especially the United States, Britain and Canada—are partly responsible for the chaotic conditions there by practically forcing Holland to withdraw from the then Dutch East Indies in 1949, contra the opinion of all who went there that year to see and hear how things were on the spot; and even against the representatives of the UN in the field, whose reports were falsified to suit the tendency in New York.

The Times itself printed at the time part of the advance reports of some of the American journalists who were there—most of whom perished on their return trip in that plane crash near Bombay; and who unanimously said that the population was not ready yet for independence.

The way Sukarno and his henchmen practically ignored the wishes of the vast population outside Java made his regime a totalitarian one instead of the federated republic Indonesia was supposed to become.

Where at the same time Sukarno has unilaterally revoked agreements with Holland to pay part of the pensions of personnel who had given a great part of their life to the development of the country, and other obligations as well, it is no wonder that those who could supply the finances necessary for further development are wary to trust such a regime.

There are other elements than Sukarno and his clique, with whom co-operation would be possible and who could develop this resourceful land for the benefit of the population as a whole.

Other articles in the same issue of the Times as "Beyond Imagination," by B. A. Tobin, give an insight of the struggle which is going on in other undeveloped parts of this world.

Just after reading the Times editorial, I listened to Edward R. Murrow's broadcast over KIRO, wherein he told us of the marvellous work of the president of South Viet-Nam—who is at the moment in the United States—who overcame the danger of Communist infiltration in his country. The same could be done in Indonesia, when the right man is at the helm.

A Man's Health

We have been told in detail of the recent and happily successful operation on Sir Anthony Eden, but the reports throw no light on a clinical point which may be of great interest to future historians. How long had those recurrent fevers, first publicized on the voyage to New Zealand, been in evidence? Specifically, what was his temperature on the day of the London conference with Messrs. Mollet and Pineau?

Quoting Fulton Lewis Jr.

Before writing editorials such as the one relating to the late Sen. McCarthy, I would humbly suggest that you check with some intelligent American citizen.

If you would read Fulton Lewis Jr. or David Laurence and several others, you would discover that Senator McCarthy was highly respected by a great many highly respected and prominent Americans that knew him well. If you doubt me, please write to Fulton Lewis Jr., or David Laurence and they will gladly mail you the information and the facts of which you apparently are in complete ignorance. Both of these writers are respected and quoted widely by Congressmen and Senators of both parties.

Do you remember Alger Hiss, Dexter White, the Rosenbergs, Greenglass and many others?

Do you recall Claude Fuch, McLean and Burgess? One—just one—Claude Fuch gave Russia the key to our A-bomb after being cleared by British intelligence.

In my humble opinion some other countries could have used a few Senator McCarthys.

Canada is probably the rare exception.

FROM DAMASCUS

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Flamingoes and Hedgehogs

JUDGING by every surface indication in this outwardly lovely, inwardly tortured little oasis city, Syria is due to move still further along the road marked out by Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

A Syria still more virulently anti-Western, in appearance an Egyptian colony in all but name, but with Soviet agents behind the scenes playing the puppets and pulling the strings, that is the present prospect. No other forecast is possible after the recent Syrian by-elections in which three new seats were captured by extreme left-wing nationalists.

In order to understand the real meaning of these elections, it is necessary to view them in the context of recent events. In brief, they were the immediate sequel of an extreme left-wing effort to prepare to take full power, which was rather narrowly frustrated.

Small Minority

Hourani is not a member of the government and his Baathists and the allied Communists are a small minority. Serraj is only a junior staff officer. But in fact each of them has long been immeasurably more powerful than Syria's President Shuri al-Kuwatly.

Annoyingly, however, the politicians whom Hourani manipulates, the senior army officers who never make a move without considering Serraj, may be intimidated but they are not inanimate.

For the last year or so, therefore, Syrian politics has rather resembled the surrealist croquet game in "Alice," with Hourani and Serraj as the exasperated human players, and most of the other civil and military personalities as the troublesome flamingo-mallets and the unwinding hedgehog-balls.

Using the flamingo-mallets to drive the hedgehog-balls through the desired left-wing wickets has really been a very trying business.

A great effort to tidy up this untidy situation was made this winter in the form of an enormous conspiracy trial organized by Col. Serraj. The details of the trial were what one might expect.

A near-Communist, Col. Afif Al Bizri sat as president of the court. After a long line of docile witnesses, one courageous defendant, Munir Ajlani, spilled the beans by publicly charging that he had only "confessed" under prolonged torture.

And with rather splendid arrogance, the military court at one moment published the suggestion that Hourani's "Coalition" prime minister, Sabri el Asali, had been guilty of perjury in denying any knowledge of the alleged plot with neighboring Iraq.

But the real point of the trial came at the end, when the son of a former president of Syria and member of one of the greatest Syrian families, Adnan Atassi; a powerful Syrian tribal leader, Hayel Surur, and three other very highly placed Syrians were actually condemned to death.

Rigid With Fear

If Serraj and Hourani had got their way—if the death sentences had been carried out—all the flamingoes and hedgehogs would have become absolutely rigid with fear. The croquet game would have been wonderfully simplified. The way would have been prepared for a final left-wing take-over.

At this point, however, apparently in part because of a plea made by King Saud to his old friend, President Kuwatly, but also because of strong local feeling, the flamingoes and hedgehogs began uncoiling all over the place. The death sentences were commuted. Serraj and Hourani were infuriated. Serraj protested to his theatrical commander, army chief of staff Nizam Ud Din.

There followed the "affair of the army transfers." With Kuwatly's initial support, Gen. Nizam Ud Din tried to get Serraj out of the country by sending him as military attaché to Moscow.

Used Pressure

The left-wingers in politics and the army immediately mobilized their influence. Serraj stayed where he was, at the head of army intelligence, which means at the head of the secret police in this country. Only the other transfers, designed to mask Serraj's transfer, were effected.

Such was the background of the election, in which all the power of the government and of Serraj's agents was used to support the left-wing candidates like Riyadh Malki here in Damascus. The left-wing victory was not glittering, but it was enough.

It places Hourani and Serraj in position for another attempt to freeze the flamingoes and hedgehogs into total docility and the great upset in Jordan has provided the spur to fairly early action.

Following is the text of External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson's address at Central Junior High School Tuesday night:

There is no doubt that there has been a great change in the principles and in the conduct of Canadian foreign policy in the last 20 years; particularly since Second World War. Canada has undertaken commitments and accepted responsibilities in the international field which would not have been considered in the 30's.

This is a recognition not only of our new and increasingly important place in the world, but also of the limitations imposed on independence by interdependence, by the necessity of maintaining peace through collective action with our friends.

The tragic experiences of two world wars have shown us that national action alone is not adequate for this essential purpose. Our foreign policy, of course, must be national in the sense that it must reflect Canadian opinion, and protect and promote Canadian interests. It must be Canada first, but it cannot be Canada alone. It must also recognize, however, that the greatest Canadian national interest today is the maintenance and the strengthening of peace and security. This is truer than ever before now that the alternative to peace may be all-out war, which would mean all-out universal destruction.

Strive to Work With U.K., U.S.

Canada must strive especially to co-operate with the United Kingdom and the United States. This is not easy in the complexities and difficulties of international affairs today. Indeed, it is not possible when they do not co-operate with each other. Therefore, Canada should on all occasions strive to help in avoiding and removing Anglo-American differences.

On some occasions, however, we may have no alternative but to make the hard choice between a British or an American position, or to take up a separate Canadian position of our own. When we do have to make that kind of decision, it should be determined by what is best for our own country. But that determination should always be made in the light of the overriding necessity for the preservation of peace with freedom and honor; an objective which, as I have said, neither Canada nor any other country, not even the most powerful, can achieve alone.

Foreign policy in these circumstances must be based on public opinion and that means that governments must keep the people informed, through parliamentary debates and in every other possible way. Now that war has become every man's tragedy, diplomacy and foreign affairs have become every man's business. Furthermore, in formulating a Canadian foreign policy, we must work with our friends in the Commonwealth, in NATO, in the United Nations. This means that members—all the members—of the coalition must, from time to time, make national concessions in the interests of international unity. For without such unity there cannot be strength, and without strength policy and diplomacy cannot be effective in the search for a solution to the problems that now so dangerously divide the world.

The decisions we have taken and the changes we have brought about in the conduct of our foreign policy since the Second World War stand in sharp contrast to the anxieties and timidities of the 30's, when Canadian opinion was weak and, at times divided on international issues; when some sections of it were frightened of responsibility and worried about the possibility of Canada being led into European entanglements and wars.

Today, however, we play an increasingly important part as Canadians—united and strong and self-reliant in foreign affairs and in collective action for peace. We have ceased to worry about our status, but we have not ceased to worry lest the policy of other governments might get all of us into trouble. That worry is inevitable in a coalition of states of varying size and power, and in a time of tension and danger when we face a ruthless and powerful potential Communist aggressor whom we have good cause to fear.

Now, however, it is Washington, rather than London, that is our main preoccupation. The shift of super-power in the free world to the United States, and its dominant international position, have made us more and more conscious of the difficulties of our relationship with our neighbor. But the growing might of Communist imperialism should also make us even more conscious of the danger we would be in if we did not have this American power as the foundation of the collective defence of the free world. It is now the major source of our military security, even though it is, at times, also the focus of our political anxieties.

It is, of course, perfectly normal, indeed it is unavoidable, that we should be intensely preoccupied with our relations with the United States. In those relations we are at times especially at election time, accused of being a satellite of the United States.

Let's get this straight. There are no two countries whose relations, because of a variety of factors—geographic, strategic and economic—are closer, or bound to be closer, than those between Canada and the United States. There may be some who regret this, but it would be folly to ignore it and worse than folly to attempt to alter it by policies of isolation or of encouraging other alignments at the expense of the Atlantic coalition, which is our greatest defence against aggression, and our strongest buttress of peace.

In this coalition, only the United States now has the power to match that of the Soviet empire. If that empire were pacific and co-operative, this would not matter. But it is not. Therefore, none of us, including the United States, has any desire, I take it, to be left facing the Communist superpower without the support and co-operation of the others; certainly without the defensive strength of the United States. That is why NATO is a sheet anchor of our defence and foreign policies, without which we might fall victims, one by one to forces that threaten us. That is why, because of its power, we accept the leadership of the United States in this defence coalition. But it must be leadership in partnership. If Washington's policies are such as to make partnership based on constructive co-operation difficult or impossible, leadership goes too. And we all, including the United States itself, would become weaker and less secure in the process.

Heavy Task

So Canadian policy, inside this coalition, must be to strengthen not weaken unity, but to insist that it must always be on a basis of partnership and mutual respect. That is a hard and heavy task, and it is one reason why our relations with the United States are at times difficult and complicated. I said as long ago as 1950, and was criticized by many for saying it, that certain Far Eastern developments at that time merely emphasized the fact that henceforth our relations with the United States were no longer going to be easy or automatic. Events since 1950 have reinforced that conclusion.

Even if we were not both members of a coalition trying to maintain peace in conditions of cold war and competitive co-existence with a ruthless and powerful Communist empire, we would still have many and complex problems with our neighbor: bilateral problems, of trade, of development of power and resources, of continental defence, of capital investment, and many others, including our different methods in dealing with the danger of Communist subversion in a free society which we wish to keep free from totalitarian procedures.

More Sensitive

We can, I think, solve these problems through the friendly and sincere search for fair and agreed solutions.

As Canadians we have our own responsibilities in this regard, but our neighbors have theirs as well. They must realize that if we were once sensitive about Canada being considered merely a colonial extension of Britain across the waters, we are now even more sensitive about being considered merely a northern extension of the United States across the unguarded border. That is not going to happen, but our feeling in this regard should be understood in Washington, as I think it is.

We will work together, we must do so, but we in Canada are going to build up our own strong, united and, we hope, distinctive national society on this continent as the basis for this co-operation; a society with its own traditions, its own way of doing things.

Joint Safety

Indeed, United States-Canadian co-operation can not develop on any other basis. In defence, for instance, we must in the interest of our common safety, agree to certain United States activities in our northland which we are not in a position to undertake ourselves, but which we agree to be necessary for our joint safety. But this must not infringe in any way on Canadian sovereignty or control over that area.

In economic development, we recognize that United States capital assistance has been of great value to us, as well as to United States investors. Without it, we would not have been able to make the phenomenal progress that we have made in the last ten years. But in that progress we are building Canada, and we are not going to allow investment to be confused with control; or American assistance to become American domination. All Canadians, I am sure, are united in this.

In trade, we acknowledge the great importance to us of the American market to which so much of our exports now go. We do, have a great many eggs in that basket—people are worried about this, and understandably so—and we should work hard to increase the number in other, especially in Commonwealth, baskets. But I wonder what we would have done without that American basket after Second World War when the rest of the world was not able to buy our goods because of dollar and other difficulties.

Having said that, however, I should add that the Government of the United States must realize that the present unbalance of our trade in their favor, though now covered in large part by capital imports, which will help to increase Canadian exports, could not be allowed to continue, as I do not believe it will continue, for long.

In foreign policy, finally, the United States cannot take, nor indeed can any other country take, Canada's support and help for granted. We have already shown this in the Far East when we refused to agree with American policy that would, in our opinion, have extended the Korean defence against aggression into a war against continental China; or when we made clear that if the armed conflict between the Communist regime in Peking and the Nationalist regime in Taiwan were seriously renewed, this would be a continuation of the Chinese civil war and, therefore, if the United States intervened, she could not assume that we would participate in any way. I mention these things, not with the idea of suggesting that we have been necessarily or always right in our view on these and other differences and the United States wrong, but to dispose of the allegation that we follow automatically every move made by the Government of the United States. There is, believe me, no truth in such an allegation. If you think so, I suggest that you consult the State Department or the National Press Club in Washington. We have to make our own decisions, and we do. But, I repeat, we must make them in the knowledge that the Communists' paramount and primary objective is to weaken and break up our Western coalition, and especially to split the rest of us from the United States. That's what they want more than anything else in the world.

This weighing of national and international considerations as we face problems that involve perhaps peace and war is something that is as difficult as it is vital. It requires at times, in Ottawa and in London and in Washington, concessions in the interest of collective co-operation. There will be other times when we will have to stand firmly on our own policies and try to get concessions from others in the interest of unity.

Our greatest difficulty of all, however, in Canadian foreign policy, and I have already emphasized this, arises when our neighbor and our Mother country disagree. Canada is indeed then a middle power, in the middle, in a sense not always appreciated.

Our dilemma when this occurs gives you a key to the policy which we must always pursue, as a matter of first Canadian interest; to keep on the best possible terms of friendship and co-operation with the two countries who are as tied to our future, as we are to theirs; and, in order to do that, to do everything we can to keep them on good terms with each other.

This brings me more specifically to our relations with the United Kingdom and the Commonwealth.

Our Commonwealth of Nations is a force for sanity and sense, for co-operation and security, in a distracted and dangerous world. We must do what we can to keep it strong and together.

Consultation

That does not mean, however, that we will agree with the United Kingdom on everything, any more than she will agree with us. It does mean that we must try to agree. This in its turn means that before London or Ottawa or any other government in the Commonwealth makes important decisions or, even more, takes action which affects directly the others, those others should be consulted whenever that is possible. Otherwise we may be in trouble, as we were last autumn.

There is one other thing about the Commonwealth which we should remember. The United Kingdom is its heart and centre, the home of our Queen, and the source of our free institutions and of so much of our history and our best traditions. But the Commonwealth now includes also three Asian members, with almost 450,000,000 of peoples, and an African state, Ghana. And there will soon be other non-Anglo-Saxon members.

Act as Bridge

It is the glory of the Mother Country in this family of nations, and a denial of the charges of colonial imperialism levelled at her especially by the greatest despotism of all history—the USSR that the United Kingdom has led these peoples to freedom. When, as free states, they voluntarily remain in the Commonwealth, that achievement is underlined. It also gives to the association a new and great opportunity to serve the free world by acting as a bridge between Asia and the West.

Nevertheless, this opportunity will be lost, and the Commonwealth in its present form may be disastrously weakened if we think of it solely in terms of London. It is going to be a hard task to keep the Commonwealth family together in any case, and Canada must do all she can to help in that task. But we will not succeed, and the world will be poorer for our failure, if we ignore the interests and problems of those members which, because of their history and cultures and traditions, are very different from our own. So when we talk of strengthening the Commonwealth or following a Commonwealth policy, we should not forget that the Commonwealth now includes India as well as South Africa, and Ghana as well as New Zealand.

Provocation

It is against that background that I would discuss the events of last autumn in the Middle East, which caused so much heart-searching and difference of opinion in our own country, and also in Great Britain, which was perhaps even more acutely divided.

Israel, under great provocation extending over years, sent military forces against Egypt. The United Kingdom and France intervened by force to protect their vital interests and to stop the fighting.

The purposes of this intervention have never been condemned or criticized, either in Parliament or at the United Nations, by the Canadian Government. We did not think, however, that the action would achieve the ends in view, particularly as it was obvious that the United Nations Assembly would be asked to intervene, and equally obvious, we thought, that the majority in that case would not support military action in the circumstances in which it was taken.

Therefore, we felt that armed intervention at that time and in those circumstances was unwise. We expressed our regret at the action taken and we certainly regretted that it had to be taken in circumstances which did not permit even of advance notification to, let alone consultation with, Britain's friends and fellow-members of the Commonwealth. Incidentally, I have often wondered what would have happened if the United Kingdom and France had not intervened so quickly and that Israeli forces had continued to operate for only a few days more!

When the matter was referred to the United Nations Assembly, as it was bound to be referred, the Canadian delegation was NATO FINE— BUT WHERE'S OUR NEW P.O.?

External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson told his Central Junior High School audience Tuesday night of a homely bit of advice he received from an elderly constituent in his home riding. "It is all very well for you to have signed the North Atlantic Treaty," the constituent said, "but it won't help you much around here unless you get us a new post office."

suddenly called on to make some very important decisions. On the first two, we were distressed by the fact that we differed from the United Kingdom. It was one of the very few occasions we had differed on major matters, but we did not take, or lead, any initiative against our two friends.

Along with 61 others, however, we voted for the right of the Assembly—and this was the first vote—to take cognizance of the Egyptian crisis by putting it on the agenda. Only the United Kingdom, France and Israel opposed this.

Dilemma

We also could not join the United Kingdom, France, Israel, New Zealand and Australia in opposing a resolution for a cease-fire in and withdrawal of forces from Egypt. We believed that there should be such a cease-fire and, in the right conditions, a withdrawal of forces.

On the other hand, we could not support this particular United States cease-fire resolution—though, according to some critics, we automatically support American resolutions—which merely called for the end of fighting without dealing adequately with the conditions which brought about the fighting in the first place.

In a dilemma of this kind, there was no alternative to abstention, so we abstained.

Furthermore, if we had voted with the United Kingdom Government on this resolution, that vote would not in any way have altered the result, which was overwhelmingly in favor of a cease-fire, but it would have made it impossible for us to have intervened later with constructive proposals in the way which we were able to do.

Suppose for the sake of argument that the United Kingdom position in the matter, had been upheld, or if the United Kingdom and France had decided they could not accept a UN cease-fire, what would the position then have been?

Chance for Russ

The fighting would have continued—and there would have been no doubt about the military result—and the United Kingdom and France would have had to occupy all of Egypt to secure the Canal. They would have done this in the face of the deep and bitter hostility of every Asian-Arab member of the United Nations, with a very real chance of that hostility bringing the other Arab states into the conflict, with destruction of oil installations following that of the Suez. It would have given Moscow a wonderful opportunity to intervene and exploit the situation for its own selfish purposes. It would also have split the Western alliance.

Finally, it would have placed strains on the Commonwealth association which that association might not have been able to stand. In saying this, I do not for one moment mean that the membership of Canada in the Commonwealth would have been affected. There is no truth to stories that we threatened to withdraw from the Commonwealth if the fighting did not stop, or that a Canadian communication, sent, incidentally, before any British forces had landed, had been responsible for their withdrawal.

Certainly the three Asian members, however, were in a different position than Canada in regard to the strength and bitterness of their opposition to United Kingdom action, and Commonwealth unity was, in fact, gravely affected.

When we are criticized for not having followed a Commonwealth policy in this crisis, may I just remind you that in the first decisive vote for a cease-fire three members of the Commonwealth were strongly in favor, three strongly opposed, and two, Canada and South Africa, abstained; in our case for the reasons I have indicated. It is true, then, that the Commonwealth was divided deeply and dangerously, but that division was certainly not caused by us. To criticize us for not following a Commonwealth policy when such disunity already existed is, of course, absurd.

Key Trying

What did we try to do? First to bring about a cease-fire through the United Nations, but in terms which would deal with the problems of the area in such a way as to prevent the fighting breaking out again. I confess that we have not yet been very successful in achieving this ultimate political objective. But we must go on trying. Secondly, to secure and supervise a cease-fire once agreed to, by the establishment of United Nations machinery through UNEF. This seemed to us to be not only a useful initiative to take for purposes of pacification of the area and preventing a renewal of conflict, but it met the position of the United Kingdom Government which had already stated that if the United Nations could only intervene between the forces, the British and French forces could be withdrawn.

Support UNEF

In following this policy last autumn, we have been accused of "knifing our best friends—especially our mother country—who have attacked us in this way have, however, also strongly supported the United Nations Emergency Force and efforts to bring about a political settlement in the Middle East through the United Nations. But if we had supported the United Kingdom by voting against UN intervention in the first place, then these other results could not have occurred or even have been attempted.

Welcomed

The United Kingdom has welcomed our initiative in this regard, even though it was not able to support our first UNEF resolution. Incidentally, to attack Canada for having voted with Russia and against the United Kingdom on a resolution which was supported by nearly all the members of the United Nations is just as silly as to attack the United Kingdom because along with Russia, it was not able to support the first resolution setting up a United Nations police force accepted by nearly everyone else. Our decisions in regard to United Nations resolutions are determined by Canadian interests and if by some chance, and it rarely happens, Russia, for considerations of its own, happens to be on the same side that we are, is that any reason why we, or anybody else, should change sides? To ask the question is to answer it.

Then, finally, we were anxious to do everything we could at the Assembly to bridge the gulf between Commonwealth members over Middle Eastern policy, as well as that equally dangerous gulf between the United States and the United Kingdom. Our efforts in this regard may or may not have been successful. Personally I think that they were useful, and I know that our motives were good ones. There can be no more important cause than healing divisions inside the Commonwealth and inside the Western coalition. Would those divisions have been less or greater by now if the United Nations had not intervened, or if the United Kingdom and France had been successful in preventing that intervention or had rejected its resolutions?

Support UNEF

In following this policy last autumn, we have been accused of "knifing our best friends—especially our mother country—who have attacked us in this way have, however, also strongly supported the United Nations Emergency Force and efforts to bring about a political settlement in the Middle East through the United Nations. But if we had supported the United Kingdom by voting against UN intervention in the first place, then these other results could not have occurred or even have been attempted.

In this connection, the governments whom we are supposed to have "knifed" don't seem to have realized what we did to them. The victim has been curiously unaware of our unfriendly action. This is what Mr. Harold Macmillan, the prime minister of the United Kingdom, said in March of this year about our policy last autumn:

"I think the service (the Canadian government) gave

Queries Pearson on Meyer Release

A man who said two of his three brothers had been killed in France asked External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson Tuesday night:

"Which department of your government was responsible for releasing the German general Kurt Meyer?"

Mr. Pearson replied that Meyer was released following a long investigation after he had served many years of his sentence.

"He is now in Germany," Mr.

to finding good solutions and helping us at critical moments (at the United Nations Assembly) was one of a most remarkable kind and will always be remembered by us with gratitude."

The prime minister of France, speaking somewhat earlier, said:

"Whatever may have been our disagreements at one moment, I must underline the positive character and extreme usefulness of the initiative taken by the Canadian government, how its interventions, always animated by the most friendly spirit, have often been decisive."

Also, the Israeli spokesman at the United Nations had this to say:

"Our admiration goes out to the delegation of Canada for constantly focusing the attention of the General Assembly upon its affirmative and constructive tasks."

The test of the success of a nation's foreign policy is its willingness to accept and discharge responsibility for the maintenance of peace; its success in protesting the national interest, and its prestige and position in the world.

The present government has not, in my view, failed in its effort to meet this test. Canada stands today respected among nations, as a country which has played a good part in the search for peace and good relations between all peoples.

I hope we will continue to play that part as a strong, united and forward-looking nation.

Pearson said. "In releasing him we followed the same policy as Great Britain regarding its war prisoners."

Another man in the audience asked if there was "any sinister purpose" in bringing Lionel

Chevrier back into the cabinet when he had been working on the St. Lawrence Seaway. Dr. Fairley answered the question by saying that Mr. Chevrier was "a very good man" and there was nothing sinister at all in his return to the cabinet. "A man who repeatedly cried: 'What about the Victory Bonds?' was shouted down by the audience after he had failed to make his question clear."

Winch Calls For $1,000 Hike In Exemptions

An increase of at least $1,000 in the basic income tax deduction for both married and single men was urged Tuesday night by Harold Winch.

Mr. Winch, former provincial CCF leader and MP for Vancouver East in the last Commons, said the present income tax system is "wrong and stupid."

Speaking at an election meeting in Kitimat Tuesday night, Mr. Winch said the CCF was in favor of a capital gains tax.

"We in the CCF plan a shareable wealth program," he said. "The purchasing power of the dollar has fallen in five years but there has been no change in the allowable deduction."

FEARS TRADE DEFICIT

Canada will have a greater trade deficit with the U.S. this year than ever before, possibly $2,000,000,000, Howard Green, Progressive Conservative candidate in Vancouver-Quadra and MP for 22 years, said in Vancouver Tuesday night.

He said the Conservative party felt the country should abandon its continental policy of integrating Canada's economy with the U.S. and adopt a more national policy.

"We're selling them raw materials and buying back manufactured goods. Who gets the most jobs, Canada or the U.S.?"

Referring to U.S. plans to import huge quantities of Quebec iron ore, he said "the main reason the Americans agreed to the St. Lawrence Seaway is to get our iron ore. That will be most of the seaway's traffic."

Social Credit candidate in Victoria, Waldo Skillings, will make his first campaign speech Friday night in the Monterey School auditorium.

His topic will be the federal government's tight money policy, excessive income taxation and the so-called plan for a national housing program.

Humphrey Golby, president of the Oak Bay Social Credit Association, also will speak.

Canada is attracting outside interests who want to invest their money here, Trade Minister Howe said Tuesday night. Addressing an election meeting in West Vancouver he said the eagerness of the interests is like "a vote of confidence in this country and in the Canadian economy."

PROSPERITY PICTURE

The 71-year-old minister painted a picture of prosperity under 22 years of Liberal administration.

"Each year has been more prosperous than the one before," he said, "and I think every year will be better."

Mr. Howe forecast a steel blast furnace will be built in British Columbia within several months. This will be the forerunner to a primary steel industry in the province, he said.

"It will not be many years more, until a full-scale steel production plant will be economically feasible for B.C."

AT NANAIMO

Premier Bennett holds the election spotlight tonight when he addresses a public rally in Nanaimo.

It will be his only speaking engagement on the island during the campaign except for the so-called meeting in the Royal Theatre here May 24.

In the only other campaign meeting scheduled tonight, Dr. J. M. Thomas, CCF candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich, speaks in Jordan River.

Parking Lot Fight Brings $75 Fine

Frederick Kinnerley, 2950 Humpback, Langford, was fined $75 in Esquimalt police court Monday when found guilty of assault of John B. Smith, 801 Hutchinson, April 27.

A charge of assault on Kinnerley by Smith was withdrawn on application of Kinnerley.

Complaints arose from a disturbance at the rear parking lot of an Esquimalt beer parlor as Smith attempted to drive his car away. Smith told the court he required seven stitches in his right ear after a scuffle with Kinnerley.

Kinnerley denied that he struck Smith and later said Smith had not struck him either.

Campaigners 'Wooing'—Sweetness for Everyone

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The wooing for the June 10 federal election grows ardent. Tuesday, for example, there were words of allure for every ear.

Take taxes. Social Credit Leader Solon Low said the Liberal federal government last year took $500,000,000 more in taxes from Canadians than was necessary. This excess, he added in a CBC television broadcast, could have been used "to cut taxes 30 per cent."

Or turn to agriculture. Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker, opening his western tour, said in Portage la Prairie, Man., that the government is doing nothing while the United States, with its giveaway program going wide open, invades Canada's wheat markets "with almost ruthless abandon."

TEMPORARY PROBLEM

On the same subject, Prime Minister St. Laurent told a Guelph, Ont., audience that the U.S. program, "while very troublesome, should be a temporary problem only." American authorities were showing signs of returning to more orthodox wheat policies.

Canada was still selling the equivalent of "more than an average crop each year," but because of bumper prairie crops had some left over.

For those of prophetic bent, CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell told a Toronto meeting of packing-house workers the day will come when both Canada and the U.S. are governed by parties with the ideas and ideals of his party.

He was proud of the partnership within the CCF of laborer, farmer, small businessman and professional person, all holding common ideals and favoring a common program of economic action. Only those with something to gain from disunity—privileged groups seeking to exploit labor and agriculture—"find in the Liberal and Conservative and Social Credit parties the vehicles for their political action."

LONG-RANGE FEUD

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. St. Laurent also had words—at long range—about last year's bitter Commons pipeline debate.

The prime minister said the Conservatives and CCF joined in an attempt to kill the government's legislation to lend federal money enabling construction of the Alberta-Montreal natural gas pipeline. The Liberal leader predicted both those opposition parties will soon be "most happy" if Canadians forget their attitude on this project.

Only hours earlier, before flying west, Mr. Diefenbaker told a Guelph audience the government's use of closure degraded Parliament. He challenged Mr.

St. Laurent to point out in history when parliamentary closure was applied so quickly as it was last year.

Mr. Low, campaigning in Edmonton and Vegreville, Alta., said taxation is the real election issue. But the Liberals had failed to give Canadians a satisfactory explanation for their failure to reduce taxes.

Saskatchewan's CCF Premier Douglas proposed in Oshawa, Ont., that, as a means of curbing inflation, government allocation of strategic materials, price controls and excess profits tax be imposed, but not so stringently as during the Second World War.

First settlers in British Honduras in Central America are believed to have come from Jamaica around 1640.

City in New 'Peace' Offer On Joint Centennial Project

Victoria city council Tuesday agreed to try once again for inter-municipal amity in a permanent centennial memorial project for Greater Victoria.

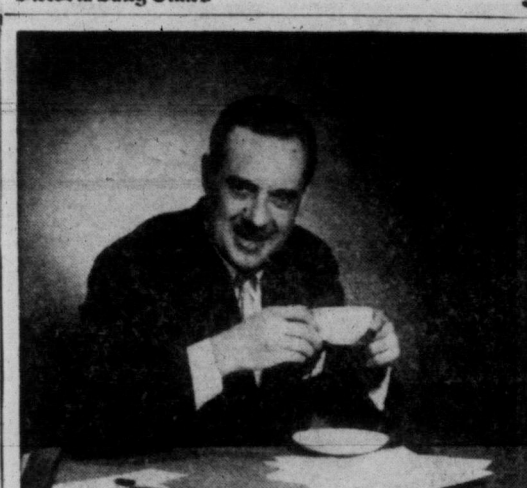

The Greater Victoria committee which is now limited to celebrating planning asked permission to plan again for a lasting project. It was felt there was new hope for success since it was announced the project must be one which can be completed in 1958. This would rule out the most controversial issue—a centennial grant to Royal Jubilee Hospital expansion.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions to select to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe. Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Barla Helwell, age 12, of Provo, Utah, for the question:

What are the rings of Saturn made of?

Most of the planets are circled with moons—any number from one to a dozen or more. But only Saturn is circled with golden rings. We can sometimes see Saturn at night, looking like a yellow star in the sky. But it is too far away for us to see the shimmering rings without a telescope. Even through a small telescope they appear as a breathtaking spectacle.

Telescope pictures show the rings of Saturn in a series of bands. Astronomers have figured their measurements and they have a good idea of what materials they are made. Long ago, it was estimated that the shimmering rings could not be solid. Otherwise the gravity of Saturn would make them collapse.

Experts guessed that the shiny bands were made of meteor dust. In 1895, an instrument called the spectroscope was used to prove that Saturn's rings were made from dust and rocky debris. Naturally they have no light of their own and Saturn is an icy cold planet some 886,000,000 miles from the sun. The planet and its rings glow with the golden light that lights our moon and all the Solar System—the radiant glory of the sun.

Saturn's rings are merely clouds of dust and dead rocks. It is sunshine filtering through the particles which turns them into bands of shimmering gold. Since Saturn is farther from the sun, we always look outwards at its daytime side. We see the rings from different angles, sometimes they are hooped, sometimes flat and at times they almost disappear. But to us they and their planet are always bathed in golden sunshine.

In depth, the rings of Saturn are no more than 100 miles. In width, they spread out 86,300 miles into space. They are arched in three distinct bands circled with a sizeable space between each band.

The first band begins 6,000 miles above Saturn's equator and reaches up for another 11,000 miles. This is called the outer ring and it may be made of sizeable chunks of solid material. Above it reaches the widest and the brightest of the bands. It begins 17,000 miles above the planet and stretches 18,000 miles out into space. Above it is a 2,200 mile band of empty space. Beyond the space is the outer ring which is 11,100 miles in width.

All the rings are partly transparent, which is what you would expect from clouds of dust and stones. The outline of the planet shows plainly through the inner crepe ring and less clearly through the outer ring. The bright inner ring even shows the distant stars through its golden haze. The teeming particles that make the rings are endlessly circling the planet. The inner bands seem to be moving around faster than the outer bands, but all whirl in a carousel of golden debris about Saturn's equator. Together they cast a slender shadow on the surface of the big planet.

Some experts think that the rings may be fragments of a shattered moon. In any case, Saturn has no shortage of moons. At various distances, way outside the shimmering rings, the beautiful planet is circled by nine satellites.

There was a trading post on the site of Port Hope, Lake Ontario town 60 miles east of Toronto, as early as 1778.

The pack will hold a meeting on Saturday next at 10:30 a.m.

Observation tests were run off as well as the patrol meetings held within the troop.

A number of the patrols will be going on a hike on their own over the weekend.

By AUDREY SLD. JOHNSON

Probable contenders for the only trophies now awarded in the Greater Victoria Music Festival, were revealed at Tuesday night's festival concert at First United Fellowship Hall.

A large audience heard Marlene Vance, soprano, achieve her third major win with a mark of 90 and were thrilled by young Victoria pianist, Joanne Dawson's brilliant performance of a Beethoven concerto in the open class. Joanne also received 90 marks, the first time so high a mark has been awarded by adjudicator Hugh McLean.

Altogether it was a brilliant evening and one that would satisfy even the most exacting musical taste. Moreover it held promise that tonight's grand final concert will be at least as fine.

Finale of eight days of music and speech art sessions will take place at Central Junior High School, starting at 8 p.m.

There will be four competition classes; one for male voice choirs in which the Meistersingers and Arion Club will contend for honors; vocal championship rose bowl contest and piano contest for the City of Victoria Medallion.

A trio consisting of Bernard Rain, violin, Marguerite Hultgren, cello and Lorna Mulholland, piano, are the sole entrants in a chamber group class.

The program will be rounded out by a few star performances by winners of previous sessions. Some awards will be presented, but most have already been made.

Concerning Joanne Dawson's concerto playing Tuesday night, Mr. McLean commented: "The most rewarding performance in this year's festival."

He praised her "great authority" and her technique which was "quite fully developed and mature." Wristwatch prize for highest rating in senior piano concerto classes was awarded to the 18-year-old pianist.

Promising performances were given by two competitors in the concerto, 14-18 class. Judith Andrews received a mark of 87 and Jean Bartholomew, 81.

Folk song class was won by Marlene Vance with Christa Ortlepp second with 89 marks and Adele Gault and Kitty Dixon tied for third place with 88.

FINE CHOIRS

A massed choir lesson was given by Wayne Hertz at the end of the evening when he grouped Emmanuel Baptist Church and St. Aidan's United choirs on the stage and put them through the test piece. Describing them both as "fine choirs," he awarded first-place marks to St. Aidan's.

Special performances were given by violinist Mary Goward and pianist Gillian Gerry, both immensely talented young people.

Awards made during Tuesday's sessions included the Marion McGovern Scholarship of $50, presented by the Victoria Chapter, Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto Alumni for highest mark in performers' Beethoven sonata class, to Joanne Dawson; Victoria Registered Music Teachers' Association bursaries to Cheryl Borris, Shirley Russell and Mary Goward, and a tie-breaking Music Festival bursary to David Goodenough.

Victoria Toastmistress Club book prize was won by Mrs. Catherine Aldred who was given a mark of 92 for public speaking.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY
Mrs. Dan Barker
(MOTHER OF 5)

Many "near-a-year" babies become quite adept at fighting the sandman. A few "tried and true" helps that often work wonders:

• Try to see that your little one doesn't get over-tired. Exhaustion makes baby apt to fight sleep.

• Keep "roughhouse" play and bouncing to a minimum before bedtime. Over-stimulation has a way of keeping little eyes open.

• Try to keep the same bedtime hour. Little ones will accept regularity if they haven't tasted the joys of laxity.

• A few regular bedtime rituals are ever so relaxing.

Sparkling teeth—starting to shine through? Then here's welcome news for your wee one. Gerber Teething Biscuits are extra-hard, to give baby the biting satisfaction he wants and needs. The surface is extra-smooth and easy on tender little gums. They're pleasantly flavored, but won't dull baby's appetite for regular meals. Gerber Teething Biscuits are baked into a special easy-to-grasp shape.

Grab-bag gently, for high-chair sitters. Why not slip a small, brightly colored toy into a clean, plastic vegetable bag, and hand it over to your inquisitive one? He'll be able to see that something exciting is inside—have a whale of a time trying to get it out. Good "occupational" therapy if lunch is a bit late.

WHAT'S THE SCORE?

BY Denny Boyd

Ed Ash wined visibly as a batter took his second cut in the cage and broke a bat.

It was a brand new bat and the ninth that the team had broken in two days of intensive batting practice.

When you are running an amateur or semi-pro baseball team, as Ash is, broken bats are like unexpected bills—they foul up the budget and add just another small headache to the heap that can grow to be a skull-buster.

Ed and his Farmer Construction ball team tear the lid off what they hope will be their biggest season Monday when they open the gate to Burnaby Athletics in the opening game of the Northwest International League at Athletic Park.

Ash has many things going for him—a good bunch of kids who are too anxious to play ball to worry about getting anything under the counter for it; an open-handed, sincere sponsor in George Farmer and a small core of ex-pros who are willing to play ball for kicks with everything they put out when they were getting paid for it.

But there is a debit side, too. Most paramount of the worries is the support the team will receive this season from Victoria. If the fans turn out, Ash promises they will go home stuffed to the eyes with solid enjoyment, hot dogs and peanuts. The foodstuffs he will leave to the concessionaires but the baseball he will personally guarantee.

Then there is the necessarily tight budget. It will cost between $4,000 and $5,000 to see the team through this season. If the club could anticipate fan support, the budget would not be quite the thorn-bush it is. But as it stands, with only last year's lonely season to go by, the Farmers have to pare expenses to the core and a broken bat presents a new problem.

For City Kids, Not Baseball Gypsies

But one thing Ash has by the box car is faith in his team. There always are 100 and one semi-pro ball players who drift around the country, looking for a soft job and 10 bucks a game to display their talents. But Ash wants no part of them.

In that basso profundo voice of his, that seems to come out of a cave, he says, "I've got six letters at home right now from guys who want to come here to play for us. They've heard of the calibre of the league and they want to get in on it. But I can't see any good reason to drop our own kids to pick up these gypsies, no matter how good they are. We want a good ball club, certainly. We want the best in the league, but, at the same time, we want a club that the kids in our minor leagues will look towards and want to work up to some day. If we stack up with a bunch of imports, we would be cutting the props out from our own minor leagues."

"I'd like to see our kids pick up a few bucks for playing but we can't even begin to think of that now. We have to put our team on a solid basis and before we ever take any money out for the team, we will turn over a big chunk to the minor leagues."

"Sometimes I wonder if our kids get discouraged when they hear of other players on other teams getting paid, but then I just think of last year. We won $1,000 in two tournaments, but the players turned every cent back to the team to continue our operation. We had a banquet but they didn't even ask for jackets. And for the time being, no player will get a flat dime for playing."

Jake Had Good Reason to Be Tired

But even if he had money coming out of his hot water tap, Ash couldn't do much better than the team he has right now.

He has two complete infielders, four hard-hitting outfielders, an ex-pro and a glittering rookie sharing the catcher's tools and an appetizing assortment of left and right-handed pitching. When Ash talks about "my kids," he may mean ex-Coast League and former Victoria Tyee Bill Prior or bleach-topped rookie Jake Jacobsen.

The latter player was something bright that the Farmers saw in the dust at Sidney and picked up.

Jacobsen, who has a world of mound poise, a dancing curve and a buzzing over-hand fastball, would pitch every night of the week if given the chance and he actually tried it last year to Ash's horror.

Ed took the teen-aged rookie out of the Sidney minor leagues last year but didn't know that Jake was still continuing to play with two other Sidney teams.

Ash gave Jake his first start in a game at Burnaby and for three innings he was firing aspirin tablets past the batters. Around the fourth inning, the rookie seemed to tire and Ash walked out to the mound to see him.

Asked his trouble, Jake said his arm was getting heavy. Ash remarked that it was early in the game and that Jake might be able to work the kink out of his arm.

"Well, maybe," Jacobsen replied. "But I pitched nine innings last night at Sidney and nine the night before and I think I need a rest."

Pollyettes Scramble To Thwart Vicettes

Victoria Pollyettes had to come from behind with a pair of four-run innings to squeeze out an 8-6 victory over Vicettes in an exhibition women's softball game at Central Park Tuesday night.

Trailing, 5-0, after being blanked on three hits over the first four innings by Lorraine Shields, they collected four runs in the bottom half of the fifth frame on one hit, two walks and two Vicette errors to pull within one run of their senior "B" rivals.

Two bases on balls, two singles and a sacrifice gave the senior "A" club its second four-run inning in the fifth.

Burris Returns

EDMONTON (CP) — Kurt Burris, 25-year-old burly center from Oklahoma University, is returning to Edmonton Eskimos this season after a year out of football, the Western Interprovincial Football Union club announced today.

Burris, the No. 1 draft choice of Cleveland Browns of the National Football League when he left college in 1955, played with Eskimos that year, but sat out the 1956 season.

Fairfield League To Open Saturday

Fairfield Little League will officially take its place on city score sheets Saturday when it holds its official opening with ceremonies and a double-header at Brooke Street Park starting at 1 p.m.

HANDICAP GOLF

Mrs. D. Naysmith won low gross honors at Gorge Vale Golf Club Monday in the ladies' 15 and under handicap competition with an 86 while Mrs. G. E. Harris took low net honors shooting a 76.

EVEN THE REF WHISTLED

Curl's take a beating when this all-girls' squad attempts to give soccer a new look. Although goaltender is sporting a different product, all players are members of St. Leonard's, Sussex, shirt-factory team. They didn't appear ready to challenge Manchester United but spectators didn't seem to mind. (Mirrored.)

FIELD MARKS REWRITTEN

Record-Busters Bag Three More

The records kept falling, but not with the noise of previous days, in Tuesday's inter-house track and field meets at Mount View and Victoria High Schools.

New marks were established in both the senior and junior boys' discus events at Mount View, and in the junior girls' broad jump at Vic High.

In Mount View's tight race for the inter-house totals, Cascade House pulled out of Monday's opening-day tie with Olympic House by compiling 29½ points on Tuesday to go ahead with a 74½ point total.

Four and one-half points off the pace is Olympic House, while Rockies House is closing the gap with 67½ points. Trailing is Selkirk House with 39 points.

At Vic High, House III is still in front with 53½ points after two days of competition, while House IV is inching closer with 47½, having taken over second position from House II, which is now third with 44½ points. House I is last with 36 points.

In Tuesday's record-smashing events at Mount View, Brian Carver lobbed the discus 102 feet 11 inches to set a new mark in the senior division, while Fred Wright heaved the platter 81 feet six inches for a new junior standard.

SOUTH AHEAD

Charles South leads all individual competitors at Mount View with a total of 11½ points in his bid for the junior boys' aggregate championship, while Jim Wilson, with wins in two events, is leading the drive to the senior crown with 10 points.

Sharon Pettigrew with 10 points is leading the junior girls. Gerrie Warshawski's nine points top the senior girls' slate. At Vic High, meanwhile, Rick Kelsall is making no mistakes in his efforts to add the senior championship to the junior crown he won last year.

With a total of 10 points before he even went into Tuesday's events, Kelsall added the senior boys' shot put to his earlier softball throw and discus victories to boost himself well into the lead with 15 points.

Also doing well is Ed Pottin, a junior who persists in bettering most senior competitors. He threw the shot 37 feet seven inches on Tuesday, just blueprinted to overlook the Straits of Georgia.

Cost of equipping the room is estimated at $7,500, which means that the angling club will have to hit a record total in order to reach the goal. Most successful derby was in 1954, when a total of $6,723 was turned over to the hospital at Mill Bay.

Since the derby was started in a modest way in 1946, it has received heart-warming support from lower-Vancouver Island residents and the VSIAA, with the Daily Times co-sponsoring the event for the past eight years, has raised a total of $39,032.67 for the Solarium. Each ticket will again cost an even dollar and entitle the buyer to compete in the salmon derby, scheduled to start at 6 a.m. and close nine hours later.

James announced that derby contestants will be fishing for at least 35 prizes, donated by city firms, and that all ticket buyers will again be eligible for the big consolation prize, which the winner will be proud and happy to park in the family garage.

The date few fishermen will want to miss is Sunday, July 21. Derby action will start at 6 a.m. at Saanich Inlet.

IT'S WORRY, WORRY, WORRY

Ol' Jake Has Hands Full

If the Devil makes work for idle hands, he'll get no business from Jake Proctor, coach of the New Westminster Salmonbellies.

Proctor's hands get hardly a moment's rest these days as he is either wringing them with worry or shaking them fist-wise at the Intercity Lacrosse League Commission.

The foxy Salmonbellies' coach brings his team into Memorial Arena tonight to face the Victoria Shamrocks and Proctor admits freely to shouldering a back-bowing load of worries.

"I got worries," Proctor was saying Tuesday.

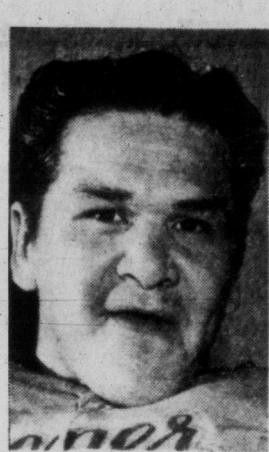

"I can't get my line-up straightened out because we have three players out with injuries already."

"And that's not all. I got some good talent but I'm telling you, I need help. I need a forward and two defencemen in a hurry."

Does Jake have his eye on anyone in particular to alleviate his needs?

"I'm not saying."

Is he shopping around?

STAN JOSEPH
... big stopper

"You might say so."

"It's up to the commission whether I get out of the hole or not. If they give me the players I want, I'll be alright. Trouble is, they don't see it my way. They have some idea about trying to keep the two mainland teams even which is crazy. A guy should be allowed to go out and dig up the best team he can."

"We put in a lot of work over here—I even gave up fishing—but if we don't get some player help, it will all be wasted. We're shooting for 2,000 fans a game at home but if we don't have a contender, the crowds will go right back to nothing again."

"I think I've given enough to this game to warrant some kind of consideration."

But if Jake has the headaches, he can find the odd aspirin in his line-up, which features such celebrated names as Stan Joseph, stoic veteran goaltender; former Majland Trophy winner, Jack Byford, on defence; brisk Billy Jobb, a dependable forward; and versatile Bob Raffle, who played defence with Nanaimo last year and is alternating on forward and defence with Salmonbellies this season.

Unwin Gives Irish Perfect (?) Record

Rocks Lose Third Game On Road

Vancouver Pilseners have made it unanimous.

Pils extended their Intercity Lacrosse League winning streak to three games and handed Victoria Shamrocks their third successive defeat as they whipped the sluggish Rocks, 12-7, at Kerrisdale Arena Tuesday night.

Packed with potential power, the Irish were expected to romp out in front in the race for the league title, but now have lost to each of their three rivals after opening the season with two straight triumphs on their home floor.

Dumped into third place only two points in front of New Westminster's last-place Salmonbellies, Shamrocks were balked by a former team-mate in their bid for their first win away from home.

UNWIN AGAIN

Dave Unwin, one-time spare goaltender for the Irish, played the leading role as Pils extended their victory skunk through a third game and moved within two points of the front-running Nanaimo Timbermen.

Pilseners, who started out with two successive losses, haven't tasted defeat since Unwin took over between the pipes. The ex-Shamrock has stopped 74 of 90 shots in his three appearances and allowed only 16 goals.

Although having trouble keeping up with Jack McKinnon's fleet-footed youngsters, the Rocks turned in the best effort of their last three outings. They scored a larger share of play than the score would indicate, matching the Pils in shots on goal, but Unwin's sparkling work and a bit of bad luck around the goal made the difference.

Leading, 7-2, midway in the second quarter, Pilseners were in front, 8-5, at half time. They added one goal as Unwin blanked the Victorians through the third period and outscored the Irish, 3-2, while their goalie was blocking 14 shots in the final quarter.

MARSH RETURNS

Alex Carey set the scoring pace for Pils with two goals and four assists. Return of Bobby Marsh and Ted Hunt to action was a big help for Vancouver. Marsh had two goals and two assists while Hunt collected a goal and an assist.

Playing without Bert Bertola and Alan Giff, both out with injuries, Shamrocks received two-goal efforts from Don Sherry, Bob Dobbie and Pee-wee Bradshaw.

Jack Bionda failed to hit the scoresheet for the first time this season as the Pils' tenacious checking held the high-scoring forward to a single assist.

Storm warnings were flying Tuesday night when Navy met Fletcher's in a Senior "B" Men's Softball League game at Heywood Park. The sailors foundered badly to drop a 13-5 decision to the clothiers, who picked up 13 hits against the combined pitching of Ken Sturrock and Jerry Stillson.

Mike Rye, pitching for Fletcher's, had a seven-hitter and was aided by the hitting of Jack Doney who slammed out a double and two singles.

Doug Peden OUTDOOR REPORT

It is doubtful if any of the annual Provincial Game Conventions has caused as much interest among organized sportsmen as the 11th one, which started at Penticton at 9 this morning.

One of the reasons is that Earl C. Westwood will make his initial address in the capacity of minister of B.C.'s new department of recreation and conservation and could drop some hints on possible changes in policy.

Also, rumors of a shake-up in the Game Commission have been bouncing around and Mr. Westwood may either substantiate or squelch the stories.

And there are several interesting resolutions on the agenda, some controversial, but with considerable merit, and others warranting interest only because they are unenforceable, impractical or just plain foolish.

Resolutions that may receive strong backing include:

That a $10 alien non-resident licence be required for fishing in tidal waters.

That the fishing regulations booklet be distributed in January, when new licences come into effect, instead of in May, as at present.

That a licence be required for fishing only, instead of the current regulation which makes a licence necessary to transport fishing tackle.

That the game department set aside at least $100,000 as a reserve fund to be used in searches for lost sportsmen.

That the game commission reconsider its plan to institute a single $5 hunting licence in place of the present $4 and $7 licence fees.

That rifled slug shells be colored differently from ordinary shotgun shells.

That areas known to be winter feeding grounds for game be reserved for use of wild animals, banning domestic grazing on those ranges. And that domestic sheep owners be prohibited from using wild sheep ranges for grazing their flocks.

More Public Shooting Reserves Wanted

That more public shooting reserves be set aside throughout the province.

Among the resolutions which we expect to be voted down in short order are:

That a hunter be allowed to receive another game tag free of charge if he discovers he has shot a diseased animal.

That the Game Commission make it an offence to wantonly waste game.

That alien non-resident hunters be allowed to hunt "only at a distance not greater than 10 miles from a main highway or railroad."

That an alien hunter in possession of a trophy must be able to produce the carcass of the trophy animal.

Some of the flaws in the last four proposed resolutions are obvious. For instance, most game animals are diseased to some extent; who is to decide what conditions would warrant free tags? Who is going to define what constitutes "wanton" in each case? In almost every locality herds more than 10 miles from highway or railroads are under-harvested. And since a non-resident alien pays fees for the right to take a trophy, it should be his business what he does with the carcass.

However, each affiliated zone sportsmen's group has the right to submit resolutions. One of the main functions of the Game Convention is to pluck the bad from the good.

Some of the hottest salmon fishing the past week, for small spring salmon and bluebacks, has been off Nanaimo and near Hornby Island.

Trout fishing in upper Vancouver Island lakes has improved greatly in the past 10 days and most should be worth a try for the next three weeks. Chances of taking a big trout on light tackle should be good in the larger lakes until the lunkers head for deeper water in June.

The Game Commission's quarterly publication—Wildlife Review—has grown into a healthy offspring since first being issued in October, 1954.

Editor Bill Ward, who won a national conservation award for his work, always manages to pack a lot of good information into each issue, which now has a circulation of over 16,000.

Wildlife Review may be received free of charge by writing the B.C. Game Commission, 567 Burrard, Vancouver.

MOUNTIES NIP PADRES

Bill Hurls, Jim Hits; Angels Back on Top

By The Associated Press

Bill Hanlon's fourth straight pitching victory and a two-run homer by Jim Baxes shoved the Los Angeles Angels back into first place in the Pacific Coast League a half game ahead of Hollywood, Tuesday night.

The Angels, defending champions, upended San Francisco, 5-1, as the result of Hanlon's and Baxes' effort while the Hollywood Stars were losing a 10-inning effort to Seattle, 7-5.

Portland homered its way past Sacramento, 4-1, and Vancouver edged San Diego, 3-2.

The game at Hollywood hung at 3-3 at the end of nine innings, but the Rainiers loaded the sacks with a walk, a double by Leo Righetti and an intentional pass—with no body out. Joe Taylor singled across two runs and Jim Dyck and Hal Bevan hit safely for two more.

Hanlon allowed only five hits and the only Seal run came in the third inning when Eddie Sadowski tripled and Harry Malmberg singled.

THREE HOMERS

Back to back homers by George Freese and Joe Macko in the second inning and Frank Ernago's four-bagger in the fourth featured Portland's defeat of cellar-dwelling Sacramento.

A mere 588 fans turned out to see the Solons stretch their string of scoreless innings to 27 before finally snapping it in the ninth when Nippy Jones singled and came home on Ted Bell's double against the left field fence.

San Diego's Hank Aguirre gave up only three hits but his wildness cost the Padres the game.

The lefthander walked eight Mounties and threw wild over second base in the eighth with the score tied 2-2. Kal Segrist had opened with a single and Aguirre's wild throw after fielding Jim Marshall's bunt saved both runners and let Segrist get to third.

A sacrifice fly by Len Green scored Segrist with the winning tally.

George Bamberger yielded seven scattered hits to net his fifth win, his third straight against the Padres.

New Kids Add Fizz To Whizz

Phillies Snap
Redleg Streak

By The Canadian Press

A new generation of "whizz kids" appears to have emerged at Philadelphia. They promise to thrust the Phillies back into the National League spotlight after six years of frustration and disappointment.

Some of the original "whizz kids," like Richie Ashburn, Willie Jones, Granny Hammer, Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons are still on the scene but they've been forced into the background by such youngsters as Ed Bouchee, Harry Anderson, Bob Bowman, Jack Sanford, Don Cardwell and Dick Farrell. This sextet has been largely responsible for the Phillies' current streak which has produced seven victories in the last 10 games.

PASS DODGERS

Three of the six were instrumental in Philadelphia's 10-8 victory over Cincinnati Tuesday night which snapped the Redlegs' 12-game winning streak and knocked them out of a first-place tie with Milwaukee. The victory also boosted the Phillies past Brooklyn into third place in the tight National League race.

The three were outfielder Harry Anderson, first baseman Ed Bouchee and pitcher Dick Farrell. Anderson walked a home run and single, drove in two runs and scored two. Bouchee also hit a home run and single, drove in two runs and scored one. Farrell received credit for his second victory.

The Braves took undisputed possession of first place, with a 3-2 victory over the Dodgers, who dropped into fourth place, 3 1/2 games off the pace.

DETROIT WINS

In other National League games, the New York Giants defeated St. Louis, 5-3, and Pittsburgh outsluged the Chicago Cubs, 8-6. Rain played havoc with the American League, forcing postponement of the scheduled games between Kansas City and New York, Baltimore and Cleveland, and Chicago and Washington. In the only game played, Detroit blanked Boston, 2-0.

A pair of old Dodger killers—Joe Adcock and Bob Buhl—did it again to Brooklyn. Adcock settled for a triple but it drove in one of Milwaukee's two runs off loser Don Newcombe. Adcock carried over the second run himself on a single by Chuck Tanner. Billy Bryton drove in Milwaukee's final run with a sixth-inning triple. Buhl, who whipped the Dodgers eight times last year, was the winner.

Nightmare Game Hits Foresters

When things start to go wrong in baseball they do it with a vengeance that sometimes leaves the winners as bewildered as the losers and the spectators completely lost.

By JEFF KEATS

'Now look what you've done! For the last time, Dolan, the game's over and I never reverse a decision!'

Big Klu Gets Go Ahead

BOSTON (AP)—Ted Kluszewski, Cincinnati Reds' infielder, was discharged today from the Lahey Clinic and advised by doctors that he "can be of definite value to the ball club."

Dr. James Poppen, who examined Kluszewski on his arrival here Monday, said he has advised the big first baseman "to get in shape and play ball."

Kluszewski was to leave Boston later in the day to rejoin the club.

Dr. Poppen said Kluszewski has a protruded intervertebral disc and that "with exercise and conservative treatment it is hoped that he will be able to carry on without surgery."

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—Sale of six cargoes of Canadian wheat to Japan featured trading news today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Coarse grain dealings were quiet. There was some action in flax with a few export orders reported.

Oats and barley trading was dull with a few domestic orders. Rye prices were firm, reflecting action on United States markets.

There was no information on overnight export loadings of Canadian wheat.

City Spurns C of C On Business Tax Aid

Chamber of Commerce new offers to "help" in working out details of the proposed new Victoria business tax were cold-shouldered Tuesday by tax committee chairman, Ald. Hugh Ramsay.

The chamber Monday complained of "shabby treatment" by council after it asked to send members to sit on a joint committee to study the tax.

A letter went from city hall Tuesday to the chamber thanking the group for its interest but reiterating the stand that no further chamber-council meetings are necessary.

The letter, signed by city clerk M. F. Hunter said, "The council feels your chamber's views were well covered in presentations and discussions at two meetings with the special committee, that they were given full and careful consideration and that there is now no apparent need for a joint committee."

It added, with reference to a complaining letter from the chamber, "the tone of your letter was one of censure of the committee. Council considers this unwarranted."

Ald. Ramsay said the chairman of the chamber committee had summed up the situation when he stated it was a little late now for a meeting, since a joint committee had been turned down by council and since council had set the figure to be raised by business tax this year.

Council voted to raise $460,000 this year from business tax as compared to $300,000 raised in 1956 from trade licensing which will be largely replaced by the new tax.

Tax will be based on assessed rental values of business properties and a tax roll is to be prepared by the end of August. It has not been settled whether types of businesses will be classified and will pay varying rates.

BUT NOT FOR JUDGES

Cemetery Law Fight Finally Concluded

By NORMAN CRIBBENS.
A three-day legal battle over whether there should be a modern, garden-type cemetery at Goldstream ground to a weary halt in the B.C. Appeal Court Tuesday afternoon.

Victoria lawyers D. M. Gordon, QC, and Alan B. Macfarlane retired to their corners after nearly 12 hours spent on the difficult task of making the law on cemeteries come alive—and the "referees" reserved judgment.

Mr. Justice Sidney Smith, Mr. Justice H. W. Davey and Mr. Justice F. W. Sheppard now have to decide whether or not they will uphold a decision by the Public Utilities Commission and the B.C. provincial cabinet to allow an eastern Canadian firm to build the new-type cemetery at Goldstream.

"We shall give judgment as early as possible—certainly not later than the next session," Mr. Justice Smith said.

Perhaps because of the warm, heavy weather, the lengthy hearing had a soporific effect on courtroom spectators and one or two heads nodded during the closing arguments.

THEY STAY AWAKE
The three judges, however, looked dutifully alert and court officials scribbled industriously on their pads as the voices of Mr. Macfarlane and Mr. Gordon penetrated the sleepy air of the ancient courtroom (built in 1892).

For the Memorial Gardens Association (Canada) Ltd., Toronto, Mr. Macfarlane argued that the company had a "controlling interest" in the 30 acres of former farmland at Goldstream on which they plan to build their cemetery.

He maintained that an option to buy the property, held by the company's president, constituted a controlling interest.

"Under the Cemeteries Act," he said, "a cemetery owner is defined as a person owning or controlling a cemetery. It specifies that the applicant shall submit title to, or option to purchase."

"In this case, the Public Utilities Commission assumes the power to prohibit use of property as a cemetery until such time as the applicant produces proof or title."

Mr. Macfarlane submitted that the Memorial Gardens Association had made a valid application which was granted by the commission.

For the Colwood Cemetery Co. of Victoria, Mr. Gordon argued that the Memorial Gardens Association was not qualified as an owner of land in Victoria by the president's option to buy.

POWERS QUESTIONED
He cited numerous legal precedents in support of his contention that the Public Utilities Commission had exceeded its powers in granting the eastern company's application.

Mr. Justice Davey said he wondered if any question of law was raised by the commission's power.

Hearing May 29 In Sooke Fire
Preliminary hearing for two Sooke men charged with arson as a result of a barn fire at Sooke April 27, will be held May 29 at 10 a.m. in RCMP Victoria detachment court.

On $5,000 bail are Rudolph Arthur Vowles, 23, and Stephen Gregory Ward, 19.

Ward is represented by Alan B. Macfarlane. Vowles by George Gregory, and Lloyd McKenzie will appear for the crown.

Tourist Aid Clinic Here

May 29, 30

A special "Tourist Clinic Workshop" under the direction of the provincial government Travel Bureau will be in Victoria, May 29 and 30.

Designed to aid restaurant and hotel operators in catering to the tourist trade, the clinics will be held in six of B.C.'s centres over the next two weeks.

The first one opened in Chilliwack Tuesday.

The workshops are sponsored by local Chambers of Commerce in co-operation with the B.C. Hotel Association and Canadian Restaurant Association.

The provinces of Ontario and Personnel of the clinic includes William Worthy, internationally recognized authority on restaurant management; John Fisher, executive director of the Canadian Tourist Association; and Ernest Evans, commissioner of the B.C. Government Travel Bureau.

Public meetings will also be held in conjunction with the special seminars, with panel discussions and open forum at which Mr. Fisher and other members of the group will speak and answer questions.

Welsh Miners Refuse to Work With Hungarians

HIRWAUN, Wales (Reuters)

Three hundred coal miners walked off their jobs this week when 16 Hungarian refugee trainees were brought in to unload coal from trucks. The Hungarians were withdrawn and the men returned to work.

A mine official said the Hungarians were employed on a temporary basis and were among 200 Hungarians waiting to complete training and work in mines "where the men are willing to work with them."

A workers' representative said the union decided some time ago that they will not work with Hungarians. "That is all there is to it. The men are adamant."

GAINSBOROUGH, England (UP)

A Royal Air Force Vampire jet plane was disintegrated by lightning while flying over Gainsborough during a thunderstorm. Parts of the plane were scattered about the town. The body of the pilot plunged through the roof of a new house.

More Canadian air travellers to enjoy Viscount luxury

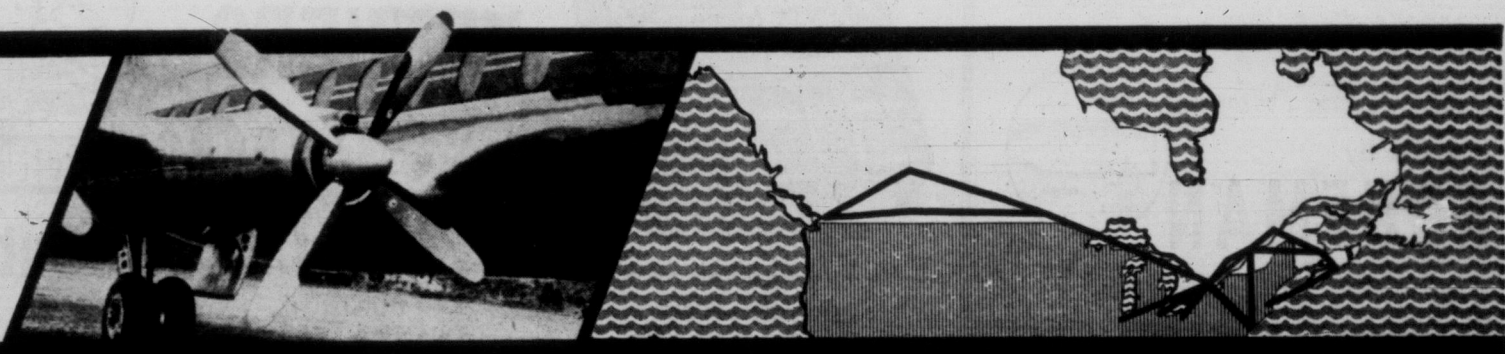

TCA's fleet of prop-jet Viscounts steadily grows... 4 more Viscounts will be added in the next few months... 22 more will be in service by the summer of 1958. More and more passengers will be able to enjoy the unmatched smoothness of turbine-powered flight. More and more centres will be served. When TCA ordered its fleet of Viscounts, the prop-jet airliner was unknown in North American skies. Other leading airlines continued to buy conventional aircraft. TCA planners were confident that the Viscount would give outstanding service. They were right. What could not be foreseen, however, was that the Viscount in a few months would so completely captivate the air travelling public! The expanding Viscount fleet is but one phase of TCA's planning for the jet age. A fleet of 20 Vanguards—prop-jet aircraft more than twice the size of the Viscount—is to be in service by 1961. Another fleet of giant DC-8 jetliners will operate on TCA's trans-continental and trans-Atlantic routes, cutting present flying times by almost half. The same creative planning that brought prop-jet flying to North America will bring still greater advances in convenient air travel in the future.

The Viscount is powered by four Rolls-Royce Dart prop-jet engines. New deliveries will bring the TCA Viscount fleet up to 51—third largest in the world.

Automation Speeding Canadian Post Office

By JACK VAN DUSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The world's first large-scale automation of the mails is under way in Ottawa with the setting up of a huge machine capable of sorting 600 letters a minute.

Post office electronics experts are guiding the installation of the $1,428,000 monster in the Bessinger Street post office. It is expected to be in full operation within three months.

Installation of the machine, 67 feet long and capable of sorting letters into any one of 10,000 pigeon-holes at the rate of 10 letters a second, ends four years of research sparked by Deputy postmaster-General Walter J. Turnbull.

Similar machines will eventually be installed in all major Canadian cities.

WORK BY CODE

The intricate device, capable of storing at least 50,000 items of information, will replace the memories of human sorters, who now do about 30 letters a minute.

In the first step of the operation, operators at teletype-like machines translate the addresses of the letters into abbreviated coded symbols, punching them on to the letters. The operators need only to memorize the style of a simple three- or four-letter code. Human sorters need to know thousands of routes and zones.

An electronic eye will read the invisible coded address as the letters enter the huge sorter, and pass it on to the electronic brain which will swish the letters along conveyors to their respective slots.

The brain, which can digest sorting information for the whole of Canada fed by punched tapes, can accelerate the 10-letters-a-second sorting speed by as much as five to 10 times, but is held back by its less spectacular mechanical assistants in the system.

Mr. Turnbull formed a post office research centre four years ago when it became evident that manual sorting was becoming impractical because of the rapid growth of the country.

Dr. Maurice Levy, 49-year-old electronics expert educated in France and England, guided construction of a prototype working model of the machine being installed this month.

Dr. Levy, who came to Canada six years ago and worked with the defence research board and industry before joining the post office, is supervising the setting up of the new machine.

He also is working on another problem—an international coding system.

The United States and other countries are also working on the possibility of introducing electronics into the mails and Dr. Levy is convinced that while the machines can be different the code which directs their sorting should be universal. Letters addressed in code in one part of the world should be able to be sorted by an electronic brain using the same code at the other end of the globe.

Canada is ahead in this too—with a simple two-language code that can be used in both English and French.

Pay Only Half Sweeper Bill, Carey Urges

Bill of $612 for street-sweeping in Esquimalt is "too exorbitant" and should not be paid, finance committee chairman Coun. Jack Carey said today.

He will recommend to Esquimalt Council Monday night that payment be deferred until Esquimalt Service Ltd., owners of the much-bruited street-sweeping machine agree to "cut the bill in half."

Decision to hold out for a cut-rate was reached "unanimously" at a recent finance committee meeting, Coun. Carey said. Committee members are Councillors Walter Holder, W. E. A. Barclay and Coun. Carey.

ANGERED

The machine was rented between March 2 and 27 and has been the object of Coun. Carey's wrath ever since.

Earlier he demanded the resignation of Coun. George Argyle as chairman of the public works committee because he was a director and shareholder in Esquimalt Service.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele refused to ask for the resignation, but referred payment of the bill to the finance committee for a report.

At that time Coun. Carey said: "I'd like to see Coun. Argyle sue the municipality for it."

Victoria Divorces

Divorces granted in Victoria this week, follow:

Nicolay Kosteniuk, 3200 Service Street, Saanich, from Doris Kosteniuk, now in Winnipeg, married at Shebo, Sask., in 1925.

Norman Heseltine, 647 Burnside Road East, Victoria, from Eileen Heseltine, married in Victoria in 1953.

Ben Laughren's 13th attempt to swim Juan de Fuca between Victoria and Port Angeles was cancelled Tuesday because of 20 m.p.h. winds and a strong ebb tide on the U.S. side from where the perennial strait challenger planned to take off at 10 a.m.

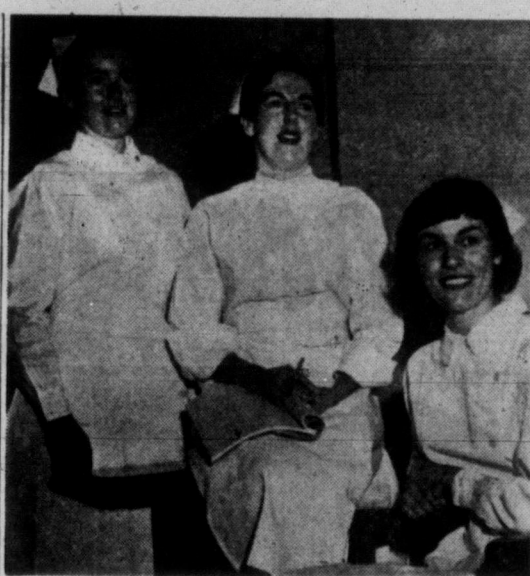

Next bid will be Sunday from the U.S. side at 2 p.m. "but only if everything is exactly right for the attempt," Ben said.

The swim group, navigator, Mrs. Laughren and boat operator, turned back about five miles from the U.S. side as conditions were obviously poor for the attempt.

Sunday, Ben spent 2½ hours in the water off Port Angeles in a training swim which originally had been scheduled as a major strait bid, until winds churned the sea and made headway pointless for any length of time.

Used Dad's Gun

NEW YORK (AP)—The 13-year-old daughter of a city detective faced arraignment Tuesday following a Harlem shooting scuffle that saw her shoot one girl, 14, and wound another with her father's revolver.

About 100 nurses at King's Daughters' Hospital, Duncan; Ladysmith General Hospital, and Nanaimo General Hospital are affected in the contract dispute.

Missionaries from Honduras, Central America, Rev. and Mrs. Edwin Gurney will show slides of the country at Sidney Four-square Church tonight at 8.

CHARGES RAPE

Husband Kills Doctor After Wife Suicides

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—A retired navy officer has told police he shot and killed a past president of the California Tuberculosis and Health Association because his wife committed suicide after the physician raped her.

A cab driver trailed Saul Sidney Klass, 53, after the shooting Monday, using radio to direct police who closed in and made an arrest. Killed by six bullets was Dr. Harold G. Trimble, 61, an internationally known chest specialist.

A lawyer for Trimble said the physician paid Klass $30,000 in 1955 after Klass prepared a civil suit charging criminal assault. The suit never was filed, and the lawyer, Herman Cook, said the money was paid "against our advice."

CITY FREER OF EPIDEMICS

Communicable diseases in Victoria and Esquimalt so far this year have been "extremely mild," medical-health officer Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy said today.

Worst outbreak was an epidemic of measles, she said, which spread here from the central part of Vancouver Island, reaching a peak in March of 44 cases in one week.

The MHO added the Salk vaccine program for children has been intensive, 2,563 received first doses and 672 second doses, in the age group one to six.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Wise Old Owls 'Graduate' In Classic Caps and Gowns

By PENNY SAVER

With graduation days approaching, many are wanting something small and appropriate to give to the proud young graduate. A bit of fun for you, who must do the shopping, and for the receiver can be had with these novel wee salt and pepper shakers I've found. Perfect for that "little something" are wise old owls, complete with mortarboards and diplomas. Their huge be-spectacled eyes are giant rhinestones that glitter. The set is really charming, and I'm sure the young lady graduate would love them. She can use them now or tuck them away in the hope chest. The salt and pepper shakers are yours for $1.25.

Something very pleasant to give, and to receive is candy. A charming way to buy delicious hard English candies is in plug-top glass jars, like those you see in candy store shelves. The tops of the jars are big enough for little or big hands and once the candy is gone, you can use the jars again for other sweets. Two pounds of hard candies in the attractive jar cost $2.59.

Let's roam for a moment into the hardware department of one of the downtown stores. Here are connected wooden salad servers that will complement any favorite salad bowl. The polished grained wood servers work much like a pair of scissors, and serving is amazingly easy. These are $1.49, while separate spoon and fork servers of similar polished and grained wood are 79 cents. These would be very good ideas for shower gifts.

For the high-school crowd, I noticed plastic record cases for small records. Teen-age parties usually call for guests to bring along their favorite records, and carrying them to and fro can be a bit of a problem at times. Here is a "record caddy" made much like a series of envelopes that fold up like an accordion. In the case you can put 20 records.

The case, folded, fits into another plastic bag with handle. There you are... all ready to go! An interesting gift for your teen-age friend, this record caddy is $1.45.

If you would like to know where I shopped, call me at 2-3131.

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Career women find it difficult to follow a slimming diet when they eat in restaurants. Many write to ask for helpful suggestions.

In the first place, order meat that is baked, or broiled, not fried. Ask your waiter or waitress to leave the gravy off. Do not eat the fat part of the meat. This may sound rugged but it will be good for your blood vessels as well as your figure.

The same goes for fish, and fowl. Cream sauces with fish are wonderful to the taste but they pile on the pounds. Chicken gravy is luscious but not for the woman who is reducing. Do not order fried fish or chicken.

When you have a green salad ask to have your dressing on the side. In this way you can measure it yourself, using only a minimum amount.

Order your potatoes baked or broiled, not mashed or fried. Ask that no butter be put on the potato. You can then measure the small dab allowed you. Naturally you will avoid cream dishes and sauces, oil or mayonnaise-dunked salads. Do not eat the little extras such as nuts and saltines, mints and so forth.

It's fresh fruit for you at dessert time! From this time of year on, for quite a while, you will have a great variety of these to choose from. Soon you will not miss the heavy calorie desserts you now think you cannot do without.

You will not be able to control the seasoning on vegetables but you can eat lots of them raw in vegetable salads and as tidbits such as carrot sticks.

Naturally if you eat the basket or dish full of hot bread just because it is before you, you cannot expect happy reducing results.

Even a few of these rules for yourself will help a lot in

THIS IS IT!

The '57 Moffat refrigerator!

WITH THE EXTRA-LARGE FREEZER THAT HOLDS ALL THIS FROZEN FOOD...

It's a brand new kind of refrigerator—this space-saving, feature-packed fresh 'n' frozen food centre from Moffats. There's a crisp, clean-lined look to the exterior, beautiful interiors in soft, attractive colors. And talk about storage space! Big family-size freezer holds up to 120 pounds of frozen foods. Pull-down crisper and waist-high dairy bar in the door. Sliding and folding shelves add to the convenience. Completely automatic defrosting—set it, then forget it! Insulated freezer keeps even ice cream perfectly during defrost cycle.

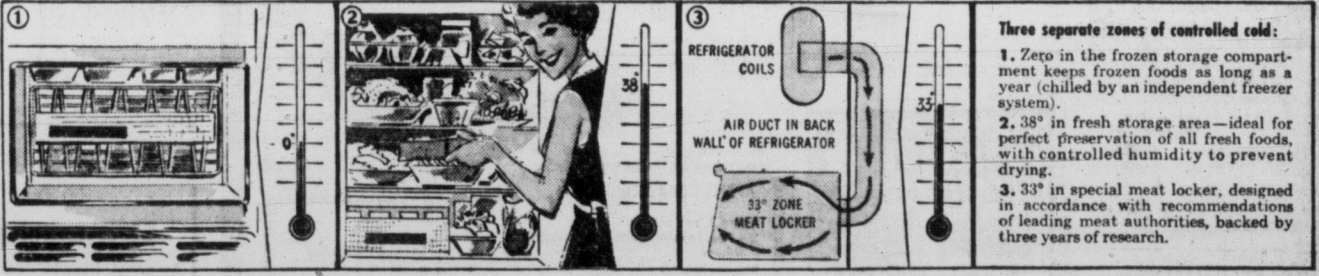

Three cold Zones—Completely new and revolutionary is Moffat's three-temperature cold zoning system. Meats stay fresh days longer because they are chilled to near freezing in the wonderful new meat locker, (left) which "breathes in" cold air and prevents the meat drying out.

New "Built-in" Styling—Put it in the most advanced kitchen designed for modern living... your Moffat fits and looks like a custom built-in. Its sharply defined look of functional beauty enhances any kitchen.

An exact scientific temperature for every food...

Dr. Fairey 'Front Man' for Oil Interests Seeking Stock Split, Dr. Thomas Claims

Dr. J. M. Thomas, CCF candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich, Monday night attacked Victoria Liberal candidate Dr. F. T. Fairey for sponsoring a private bill at the last session of the Commons to split Trans-Mountain Oil Pipelines stock.

He suggested that Dr. Fairey was a 'front man' for a group seeking to push through a deal since 1953, had later criticized the CCF for "obstructing" the will of the majority in Parliament.

The bill, which would have split Trans-Mountain stock into five shares for one, was blocked by the CCF group in the Commons.

Dr. Thomas said Dr. Fairey, who has represented Victoria bill, Dr. Thomas told his audience at Central Junior High School auditorium.

The group seeking the stock split "needed a front man—a man in the public confidence."

"They tried to conceal its ugliness by having a man such as Dr. Fairey sponsor it," Dr. Thomas said.

Dr. Fairey should be "ashamed," Dr. Thomas said.

New $50,000 Arena Floor For Brier?

VICTORIA aldermen indicated Tuesday that the price of bringing the Macdonald Brier curling championships here in 1958 may be a new $50,000 floor for Memorial Arena.

Although council has several times refused a new floor on grounds that a patch-and-pray system of maintenance would avoid the expense, the matter will get new study.

Mayor Percy Scurrell and five aldermen examined the floor and asked an accounting of recent maintenance costs.

Both Ald. Austin Curtis and Ald. E. D. McEwen were worried that the present ice system may produce too bumpy a surface for the curlers.

It is hoped to have teams from each province in Canada playing off at one time during the Centennial year event.

Arena manager Joseph Dukowski told the group he estimated a new floor would cost $50,000, and he said at present, leaks in the floor piping cost the arena $3,000 a year in brine and repairs.

Average Age of Cabinet Under 57 Says Fairey on 'Old Men' Charge

Canada's federal government has made "great contributions to this province and to this city," Dr. Frank Fairey, Victoria's MP in the last Parliament, told a Liberal meeting in the Central Junior High auditorium Tuesday night.

"My own efforts as your representative have not been unfruitful," said Dr. Fairey, referring to improved transportation facilities between Vancouver Island and the mainland, veterans' affairs, local shipyards and the Rod Hill defence area.

"I have been able to get these things settled in a satisfactory way," Dr. Fairey said.

NATIONAL VIEW
He declared the federal government took a national view in all matters and would not introduce legislation which did not improve every section of Canada.

"Our social security program is not limited to old age pensions. It is being gradually developed to take care of those of our citizens who are not in such good economic circumstances as we would like to see them."

"We are not promising vast new expenditures and reduced taxation at the same time," he continued. "That cannot be done. But we are in favor of reducing taxes wherever possible."

CUT TAXES
Dr. Fairey said Finance Minister Walter Harris in his last budget had reduced some taxes while paying off a large sum of the national debt.

There was a burst of ironic applause from the back of the hall when Dr. Fairey remarked:

"Some sections of the press are saying we are tired old men who have been in office too long."

Noting this applause, he said: "It is nice to know we have some people here tonight who need to be converted. Some say it would be good for the Liberal party to suffer defeat at the next election."

"I am glad that our opponents are so concerned over the welfare of the Liberal party," (Laughter and applause.)

Dr. Fairey said the average age of the present federal cabinet was less than 57 years. If the four great stalwarts—Prime Minister St. Laurent, Trade Minister C. D. Howe, Agriculture Minister James Gardiner and Revenue Minister J. J. McCann—were eliminated the average age would be something less than 53.

Dr. Fairey said the Liberal party was composed of "young virile men" and he made special reference to Fisheries Minister James Sinclair, Federal Resources Minister Jean Lesage and Health Minister Paul Martin.

He referred to External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson, the chief speaker of the evening, as a "brilliant statesman" who had been mentioned as possible Secretary-General of the United Nations.

"Canada is indeed fortunate to have a man of his abilities to guide us in our external affairs," Dr. Fairey concluded.

GREAT PROMISE
Alistair Fraser, Liberal candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, was introduced by Hon. R. W. Mayhew, former Canadian ambassador to Japan, as "a man of great promise in the political field."

He said he was glad that in his recent budget Finance Minister Walter Harris had not reduced taxation "because he did not think it was in the public interest to do so."

Mr. Fraser said Prime Minister St. Laurent had advised him, as a candidate, to "try and find the right answer in your own heart to the problems of the day and express them, regardless of personal popularity."

"He also advised me to keep everything on a high plane, and I am glad the Liberal party is in a position to keep its election program on a high plane even as regards local affairs."

"Local affairs are the essence of our system of democracy . . . I am contesting this election because of my very great belief in the policies and principles of Liberalism."

SEARCH FOR PEACE
In a reference to Lester Pearson's work in international affairs, Mr. Fraser said:

"The essential search in all our endeavors is the search for peace. That is inextricably the strongest desire of all of us."

"We Liberals believe that peace can best be guaranteed by utilizing the initiative and record of performance of this great man who is with us here tonight."

Of Dr. Fairey, he said: "I hope that a year from now I can look back and say I conducted myself with the dignity, honor and integrity of Dr. Fairey."

Montreal Troupe Gets $5,000 Gift For Drama Trip

MONTREAL (CP)—The hard-pressed le Theatre de Quat'Sous, which produces prize-winning plays on a shoestring, is going to the Dominion Drama Festival in Edmonton next week after all—a $5,000 donation from the Arts Council of Montreal.

The troupe was chosen to compete in the national festival after it took top honors in the western Quebec regional festival in March. It had to borrow money to stage its play, a rollicking French farce, La Tour Eiffel Qui Tue, and at first didn't think it could finance the trip west.

Girl, 3, Strangled
CHICAGO (AP)—A three-year-old girl was strangled and buried under the front porch of her home Monday. Police said a 14-year-old neighbor boy admitted the crime shortly after the child's body was found.

Pender Island Wants to Join Saanich Riding

PENDER ISLAND—The Farmers' Institute here wants the island to break away from Nanaimo electoral riding and join Saanich.

Association president W. L. Shirley said the island was both geographically and economically closer to Saanich.

The government will be asked to take action.

It was also moved to ask government action regarding beam trawlers operating in inside waters. The group felt the vessels were killing small fish, thus ruining fishing as an attraction for tourists and residents.

CPR Tries Again To Discontinue Pt. Alberni Run

WORLD LEADER WELCOMED

Warm welcome was extended to External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson when he arrived at Central Junior High School Tuesday night by Robert Mayhew. Mr. Mayhew, former Canadian ambassador to Japan and associate of Mr. Pearson in the Department of External Affairs, acted as chairman at the meeting. Mr. Pearson flew back to Vancouver today. (Times Photo.)

Mountain Could Be All-Time Tomb for Airliner Victims

Cold, grey Mount Slesse may be the permanent tomb for 62 persons killed in a TCA air crash Dec. 9, Canadian Press reports from Chilliwack indicated today.

All but given up for the present, and perhaps forever, is the attempt to bring out the bodies.

It was Canada's biggest aviation disaster when the North Star crashed into the mountain and exploded.

The airliner had set out for Calgary but turned back to Vancouver with engine trouble and had been missing until wreckage was discovered by a mountain climbers' expedition Sunday.

The men most intimately connected with the search for crash victims said the undertaking is too risky.

Mountaineers, RCAF air-rescue experts and RCMP advised that Mount Slesse's 7,600-foot level, where the main portion of the plane was located, should not now be disturbed. Its crumbling 25-foot ledge could well carry down the living with the dead.

SHATTERED BODIES

It was after mountaineers made an on-the-spot inspection of this ledge Tuesday—with its tragic store of partial limbs, fuselage fragments and engine pieces—that they announced their verdict.

The formal statements came at a coroner's inquiry at Chilliwack by coroner Glen McDonald of Vancouver.

"We have identified the aircraft," he said, "but not one person of the 62."

'AWFUL LITTLE MEN'

'Copter Rescues Pseudo Searchers

Two would-be mountaineers who started out with 10 feet of rope and a bag of sandwiches to climb Mount Slesse were rescued by helicopter Tuesday, the Canadian Press reports from Chilliwack.

The pair entered the restricted area where searchers are examining the wreckage of a Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star which crashed last December with 62 persons aboard.

One of the pair was dressed in white coveralls and smooth-soled walking boots. Officials said the nearest he had ever got to climbing a mountain was looking at pictures.

Canada Would Join In Open Skies Plan

LONDON (AP)—Canada today signified her willingness to participate in any aerial inspection plan which is made part of an international disarmament agreement.

Canadian delegate David Johnson told a closed meeting of the United Nations disarmament subcommittee his country would require only that the inspection plan be established on a fair and appropriate basis.

Johnson, at a subcommittee meeting which lasted only 30 minutes, did not specify what he considered the requirements of such a plan.

His statement, however, was believed to have in some measure increased the possibility of air inspection involving North America and Siberia.

Pearson Denies Threat To U.K. in Suez Crisis

By PETER MURRAY

An unequivocal denial that Canada ever threatened—"implicitly or explicitly"—to withdraw from the Commonwealth during the Suez crisis was made in Victoria Tuesday night by External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson.

Neither had Canada ever condemned or criticized, in the United Nations or Parliament, the armed intervention of Britain and France, Mr. Pearson asserted.

900 Attend

He spoke before an attentive audience of some 900 persons in Central Junior High School Auditorium.

They heard the most lucid description of Canada's role in world affairs ever given here.

Local Liberal candidates, Dr. F. T. Fairley and Alistair Fraser, spoke on the same platform. (See story, Page 36.)

In his statesmanlike address, Mr. Pearson touched on all aspects of Canada's international position, but dwelt particularly on her relationships with the U.S. and the Commonwealth.

Independence

Because of the shift in world power, our alliance with the U.S. is taking on increasing importance. At the same time we must strive to maintain complete independence.

In the Commonwealth, Canada must do all she can to keep the family of nations—each with different interests—together.

"And the Commonwealth in its present form may be disastrously weakened if we think of it solely in terms of London," Mr. Pearson added.

In between the U.S. and the Commonwealth Canada must act as a "middle power," Mr. Pearson said, helping to iron out difficulties that arise.

Policy Detailed

Against that background, and Canada's obligations to the United Nations, Mr. Pearson carefully detailed the government's policy during last year's Suez crisis.

He noted there was "much heart-searching and difference of opinion" within both Canada and Great Britain over the events which took place.

The Commonwealth was divided "deeply and dangerously," he said.

At the outset, Canada felt that the armed intervention by Britain and France "at that time and in those circumstances" was unwise. It would not achieve the ends in view.

Hard Decision

Canada also regretted, Mr. Pearson said, that the action was taken without consultation with other members of the Commonwealth.

When the matter was referred to the U.N., the Canadian delegation was faced with a difficult decision.

"It was one of the very few occasions we had differed with them at the U.N. on major matters, but we did not take, or lead, any initiative against our friends."

Canada voted with the majority in the Assembly to place the matter on the agenda.

HIGHLIGHTS

Here are some of the high points of Mr. Pearson's address:

"Our foreign policy . . . must be Canada first, but it can never be Canada alone."

"Canada has undertaken commitments and accepted responsibilities in the international field which would not have even been considered in the '30s."

"The greatest Canadian national interest today is the maintenance and the strengthening of peace and security."

"American power . . . is now the major source of our military security, even though it is also at times the focus of our political anxieties."

" . . . the Atlantic coalition . . . is our greatest defence against aggression today and our strongest buttress of peace."

" . . . the United States cannot take, nor indeed can any other country take, Canada's support and help for granted."

" . . . the Communists' paramount and primary objective is to weaken and break up our Western coalition, and especially to split the rest of us from the United States."

"Our greatest difficulty of all . . . in Canadian foreign policy . . . arises when our Mother Country and our neighbor disagree."

"It is going to be a hard task to keep the Commonwealth family together . . . and Canada must do all she can to help in that task."

"Canada stands today respected among nations, as a country which has played a good part in the search for peace and in building up good relations between all peoples."

Free Passage Must Be Assured Commons Told

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan said today Israel's right of free passage through the Suez Canal "must be assured" and Britain will do everything possible to "see this happen."

He told the House of Commons Britain will act "through the United Nations and with our friends" to ensure that Israeli ships are allowed by Egypt to use the disputed waterway.

Ike Against Test by Force

(In Washington President Eisenhower said that use of force by Israel to send a test ship through the Suez Canal would be reprehensible, United Press reported. But he told his news conference he sees no objection if Israel makes a peaceful attempt to test use of the canal. Informed sources in Cairo have said passage of Israeli ships will not be permitted.)

Since the Arab-Israeli war of 1948 the Egyptians have barred vessels of the Jewish state. Israel Monday indicated it was prepared to send a ship through the canal on a test basis.

Macmillan said Egypt's latest proposals for operating the canal herself are not "very far" from the six Suez principles recommended by the UN last

Oct. 13. If Egypt observed her proposals, she would have "accepted a considerable measure of restriction."

The prime minister was speaking at the start of a debate on Britain's Suez policy, including the decision Monday to end a boycott of the canal.

Egypt's latest proposals, submitted to the UN last month, insist on Egyptian operation but promise to observe the 1888 convention guaranteeing passage.

Macmillan added, however, the Egyptian proposals were only a "unilateral declaration" which could be amended or withdrawn at will.

Such a decision, he said, would be a political one and would therefore violate the UN principle that the canal should be insulated from the politics of any country.

Severe Test of Government Policy

The prime minister expressed the hope that all members would support the government in its decision to let British ships use the canal for the first time since it was reopened last month.

A small but extremely vocal faction within Macmillan's Conservative party has objected to the decision to resume using the canal and threatens to vote against the government.

The Labor party generally supports the decision but decries past British Suez policy. Opposition Leader Hugh Gaitskill opened the debate by declaring Britain had no alternative now but to "cut our losses and swallow our pride."

Macmillan reiterated there could be no real settlement which left uncontrolled authority in the hands of a single power or did not conform to UN principles.

"We shall continue to do everything we can in the coming months to secure a final settlement on these lines," he said.

The prime minister spoke after Gaitskill urged the West to recognize Russia as a Middle East power and to discuss with the Soviet Union the "basic problems" of the region.

Speaking of the government's plans for a conference in Rome with Egyptian representatives to settle financial questions, Gaitskill said "We should certainly have no illusions about our losses."

Egyptian assets in Britain amounted to just over £100,000,000.

Beck's $300,000 Unlisted Loans 'Stolen' Says U.S. Probe Chief

WASHINGTON (AP)—An insurance official testified today that Dave Beck did not list loans of $300,000-plus from the teamsters' union when making a financial statement in 1951.

Robert F. Kennedy, counsel to the Senate rackets investigating committee, commented: "It would therefore appear that the money was stolen rather than borrowed."

The Senate committee contends its evidence indicates Beck misused at least $320,000 of union funds. It has advanced the suggestion that Beck decided to call this money loans after income tax agents began investigating his tax returns.

A. M. Burke, a vice-president of the Occidental Life Insurance Company of California, identified a memorandum he had written for his files in which he said Beck, in a financial statement, had listed assets of $1,052,715 and liabilities of $234,000.

The memorandum said that in the statement Beck declined to give a statement of "salary and benefits."

RETURNED STATEMENT

Beck also was reported facing a new move to oust him from his union post, as AFL-CIO President George Meany planned to meet with a five-man teamsters' union committee considering Beck's union fate.

The AFL-CIO has suspended Beck from his high command, accusing him of bringing labor unionism into disrepute. The teamsters' union's public relations advisers are reported to have recommended his ouster from office in that group.

CAMPBELL RIVER GUIDE MISSING, FEARED DEAD

CAMPBELL RIVER—William Sutherland, 49, well-known fishing and hunting guide at Forbes Landing Hotel on Lower Campbell Lake, six miles north of here, was missing and feared drowned today in the lake.

He was on the float early Tuesday morning in front of the hotel putting engines in the boats. He failed to turn up that evening and his sister, Mrs. James Forbes, the hotel owner, notified RCMP.

RCMP were dragging the lake today but their efforts were hampered by logs and debris in the water, result of logging operations.

'Slush Fund' Needed to Carry Out Sacred Campaign, Say Candidates

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Two of the three "Social Credit" candidates in local ridings said today they have decided to withdraw from the federal election campaign.

In a joint statement, Archie L. Gillis, the party's choice in Essex East, and William F. Barton, named to contest Essex South, said their decision "in no way indicates a change or diminishment in our belief in the fundamental principles of Social Credit."

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O God, we thank thee for another day: for the light and for the promised warmth of it. Help us to walk in the light and let it filter through to our minds. Help us to respond to the warmth clear through to our hearts. O God, we thank thee for another day; for Christ's sake. Amen.

FRANCE TO TAKE SUEZ ISSUE TO UN

PARIS (AP)—The French government, in a stormy session which saw Premier Guy Mollet try to resign, today decided to take the Suez Canal issue to the United Nations Security Council.

Mollet said France regards the present Egyptian terms for passage through the canal as "unacceptable."

France will make a "last appeal" to the Security Council for a canal statute conforming with the six principles for canal navigation which the council approved last October.

LACK OF MONEY

"Our decision has also been motivated by our inability to assume personal financial responsibility for a quite elaborate local program, which is the brainchild of the national association, and which could only be borne by candidates supported by a tremendous 'slush fund'."

The third candidate is Richard Nelson Webster, who said he has no intention of withdrawing. He is in Essex West.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O God, we thank thee for another day: for the light and for the promised warmth of it. Help us to walk in the light and let it filter through to our minds. Help us to respond to the warmth clear through to our hearts. O God, we thank thee for another day; for Christ's sake. Amen.

Prince Rupert Speech Cancelled by Bennett

Premier Bennett has cancelled his scheduled speaking engagement in Prince Rupert Friday night. He will speak in Powell River instead.

The change in plans was brought about by the surprise withdrawal of Social Credit nominee Arthur Murray from the Skeena riding race.

Mr. Murray did not file his candidate's papers on Monday, which was the nomination deadline. He refused to give any reason.

U.K. Tests H-Bomb

LONDON (AP)—Britain today exploded its first hydrogen bomb in a high-altitude test in the Central Pacific.

Rightly enuff, th' Israelis are goin' t' try t' go through th' canal again. So I guess we'll go through all that again.

Lots o' students, like lots o' political candidates, are glad t' settle for a pass mark.

On'y thing t'other parties kin do about Mr. Pearson is wish he wuz on their side.

Pay Raise Within Cabinet's Power

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Government Employees' Association says Premier Bennett's government could vote civil service wage increases immediately by order-in-council.

The association issued a statement today in replying to a statement Monday by the determined by Canadian interests and if by some chance, and it very rarely happens, Russia, for consideration of its own, happens to be on the same side that we are, is that any reason why we, or anybody else, should change sides?"

As to the assertion by national Social Credit Leader Solon Low that Prime Minister St. Laurent had sent a telegram to Prime Minister Eden threatening withdrawal from the Commonwealth, Mr. Pearson stated emphatically:

"No such telegram was sent."

Mr. Eden had sent a telegram to Mr. St. Laurent outlining the United Kingdom position in the dispute, and the prime minister had replied in another telegram giving the views of the Canadian government.

In addition, Mr. Pearson said Canada's overall policy in the dispute was to attempt to bring about a cease-fire which would deal with the problems of the Middle East in such a way as to prevent fighting breaking out again.

Go on Trying

"I confess that we have not yet been very successful in achieving this ultimate political objective," he said. "But we must go on trying."

Mr. Pearson described U.S. military power as the "foundation of the collective defence of the free world."

The growing might of Communist imperialism—and it is still growing—should make us conscious of the danger we would be in if we did not have this power, he said.

No two countries in the world have closer relations than Canada and the U.S.

Folly to Ignore

"There may be some who regret this," Mr. Pearson said, "but it would be folly to ignore it."

Canada insists that her partnership with the U.S. is always based on mutual respect.

Sometimes this results in our relations with the U.S. being "difficult, complicated and testing."

Mr. Pearson was loudly applauded when he stated:

"They (the U.S.) must realize that if we were once sensitive about Canada being considered merely a colonial extension of Britain across the waters, we are now even more sensitive about being considered merely a northern extension of the United States across the unguarded boundary."

When differences occur between the U.S. and Britain, Canada has no alternative but to make the "hard choice" between the two positions, or take up a separate position of our own.

Mr. Pearson concluded: "The test of the success of a nation's foreign policy is its willingness to accept and discharge responsibility for the maintenance of peace; its success in protecting the national interest, and its prestige and position in the world."

"The present government has not, in my view, failed in its effort to meet this test."

if humanly, even super-humanly, possible."

SNOW UNSTABLE

Paddy Sherman, a mountain climber and Vancouver newspaper reporter, testified it was too hazardous at present to get "one single identifiable" body out of the wreck. He didn't think it possible that there were large enough remains of one person to make positive identification.

Another climber, Roy Mason, said "the snow mass is too unstable. It was avalanching while we were there."

It was suggested periodic checks should be made and another attempt could be started about the end of July to bring the remains out.

TCA Captain Alan Clarke, 35, his copilot, stewardess and 59 passengers died on a stormy Sunday night when the west-bound North Star crumpled up against the peak, 90 miles north-east of Victoria.

Until Sunday the plane's disappearance was a mystery.

PERMISSION NOT GIVEN

The RCAF said the returning airliner was flying on the extreme south or left edge of a 10-mile-wide air route. At first it was understood that the pilot had been given permission to descend to the 8,000-foot level from 14,000 feet. However, a qualified source in Vancouver denied Tuesday that the pilot was given permission to descend to 8,000 feet.

Wreckage was embedded in a niche about 150 feet from the giant spire which has a precipice of gaunt, vertical granite 3,000 feet high.

Viewers of the peak estimate that if the pilot had gone only

30 or 40 feet to right or left he would have cleared the mountain.

Elfrida Pigou, a 100-pound woman, one of the two climbers who located the wreckage Sunday, was also a member of the party which made the ascent Tuesday to the rocky ridge where the main portion of the plane was found.

The party had been asked to be on the look-out for money in large denominations. D. D. Murphy, transport department official, said relatives of a Chinese passenger said he was carrying $80,000 in a money belt around his waist.

Sherman said only one quarter and two cents were found. They did not disturb the bodies to look for personal effects.

Mayflower 1,300 Miles From Africa Coast

PENZANCE, England (AP)—Mayflower II, the Pilgrim Fathers' replica ship, reported Tuesday that she was about 1,300 miles west of the African coast.

Cmdr. Alan Villiers radioed: "Running in very light trade winds. All well." The little wooden sailing ship left England April 20 on her voyage to the United States.

The Mayflower's position at noon Tuesday was 22 degrees 22 minutes north, 37 degrees seven minutes west, Villiers said.

SINCLAIR ON COLUMBIA:

Private Power Deal Never Ruled Out

NEW WESTMINSTER — Fisheries Minister James Sinclair said Tuesday he had never ruled out the possibility of federal aid in private development of Columbia River hydro.

"I wouldn't say we would help or that we would not help under private development," Mr. Sinclair told reporters on his return from a campaign trip to the Yukon.

How a "growth company" grows

Are straight hot dogs better than curved ones?

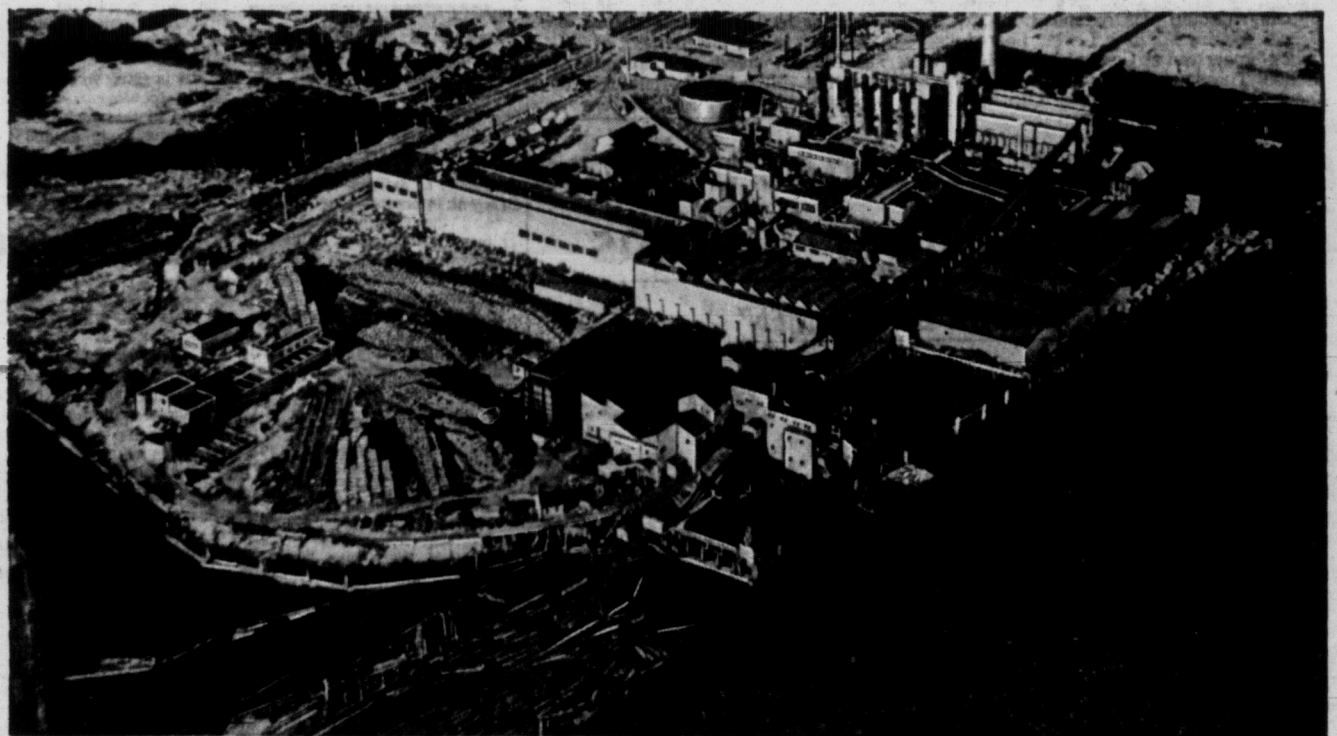

Answer: They're both mighty good eating. But the straight hot dog is skinless—and won't vary a jot in taste, color or texture. That's because it's shaped in special, sanitary cellulose casings. And it's the casing (stripped off after smoking) that makes straight "dogs" lower in cost, consistent in deliciousness.

What's in it for you? Chemical cellulose for sausage making is only a fraction of Rayonier's growth business. But this versatile raw material can actually keep many sausage meats several cents a pound cheaper on your butcher's shelf! That's because cellulose speeds sausage production and delivers to you wholesome, appetizing, fresh meats.

Thus, with ever better cellulose, Rayonier assures you real value in over 500 different products ranging from miracle fibers to hot dogs. In this way and others, Rayonier grows.

Looking behind Rayonier's growth: Some facts for the business-minded

A growing world commodity. The technical arts of the cellulose casing maker and the meat packer—plus the wizardry of cellulose chemistry like Rayonier's—must be backed up by big plants such as our Grays Harbor Division at Hoquiam, Wash., a 175,000-ton capacity mill. Here special cellulose for sausage casing is produced along with six other diversified products.

Since 1951 close to $70,000,000 have been poured into this plant and seven others in the U. S. A. and Canada, for expansion and modernization alone. Thus we are ready for new, rising demands from such growth industries as tire cord, miracle fibers and plastics. This growth-mindedness tells why Rayonier now supplies every cellulose-using country in the free world.

For still wider markets. Intensive cellulose research at three research stations in Canada and the United States keeps Rayonier out front in cellulose chemistry, often years ahead of customers' requirements for new or improved raw materials.

For example, research has recently brought in several significant developments including new silvichemicals, a field promising Rayonier additional, diversified growth in world markets.

Conservation for growth. Trees are our basic raw material. To assure our growth, and our readiness for the future's bigger demands, Rayonier conducts all-inclusive conservation programs in the Northwest, the Southeast and in Canada.

At right, we harvest mature hemlock, vital to sustained yield. Too, our advanced forestry contributes to soil conservation and abundant wild life. Thus sound timber management serves Rayonier's growth.

Man Perishes in Bed As Fire Levels Home

Duncan Mushroom Grower Victim of Asphyxiation

Fred Hermans, 50, burned to death early today when fire destroyed his small home in North Cowichan municipality just outside Duncan.

Mr. Hermans, who operated Hermans' Mushrooms Ltd., was in a two-room house adjoining the plant when fire broke out about 4 a.m. The plant was not touched by the blaze.

The house was engulfed by the time we got there. It must have been smouldering for at least two hours. We used our 500-gallon pumper but it was too late," said Fire Chief F. P. Clackson.

Firemen battled the blaze an hour.

Hermans was not married, and had been in the mushroom business in North Cowichan about seven years.

An inquest date is yet to be set.

Record Budget For Esquimalt

Three-Mill Tax Boost Prediction Confirmed; Pay Deadline July 16

Record budget of $692,600 based on an increased mill rate was approved by Esquimalt Council Tuesday night.

As anticipated, taxes climbed three mills to a new over-all rate of 34 mills.

The increase was necessitated by higher wages for municipal staffs and police department and a jump in the mill rate for school purposes from 14.4 to 15 mills, Reeve A. C. Wurtele said.

Highlighting estimated expenditures for the year is $7,500 for installation of a pumping station and pressure line to pump sewage away from a septic tank outlet off Kinross Street beach. This is expected to rid the beach of the dangers of sewage pollution.

Public works expenditures have been reduced to $39,000, as compared to $125,026 last year.

DECREASE

Capital expenditures, including street lighting, sewers, general public works, parks and playgrounds, are also down to $115,000 from $142,690.

General revenue includes $329,900 from property taxes, federal grant of $113,000 in lieu of taxes, and a provincial grant of $129,000.

Ratepayers in Esquimalt will be allowed an extra two weeks to July 16, to pay their taxes. Tax notices will be in the mail by early June, the reeve said.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: Hugh S. Campbell, 2640 Quadra, $35 for careless driving.

Vernon Armstrong, Crofton, $25 for driving without a licence.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—Will you tell me, please, if the public has access to Grant Lake, Vancouver Island?—A.F.

A.—The road to that little lake west of Shawnigan Lake is not a provincial highway, so no statement from the Highways Department is available. If you apply to the logging company working in that part of the island you will probably meet no great obstacles.

Q.—Are there wolverines in B.C.?—B.T.O.

A.—Yes, this province, including Vancouver Island, is a habitat of that animal. Specimens are not commonly seen in the vicinity of settled areas as the wolverine is a wilderness creature. There is a small bounty. In the year 1956 the government paid bounty on 138 pelts. In 1954 payment was made on 141 skins and in 1955 on 146.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

TOP STUDENT UNAWARE OF HONORS

John Gilliland won't learn of his scholastic coup until he writes home from Halifax. He left Victoria last week to train as a reserve officer in the University Naval Training Division—and his mother, Mrs. Henry C. Gilliland, doesn't have his address.

John hoped he might get a good average but he didn't expect to," she said today. "He always tells me, he should have done a better job."

High Marks At College

Five top-standing students in first and second year arts and science and commerce at Victoria College were announced in a full pass list today.

John M. Gilliland, last year a Governor-General's silver medalist, heads first-year students with an average of 94.8 per cent, and A. J. Stewart Smith tops the second year with 92.4 per cent.

Standing next to Gilliland in first year is Claudia J. Butler, 90.3 per cent. Tied for second place in the sophomore class are Geoffrey Horner and Marlene R. Hunt, 91.9 per cent.

MONTE ROBERTS

The advances of medical science are wondrous beyond belief.

As the case of a certain friend of mine, a gentleman so prominent in public life he can be referred to only as Mr. X., will prove.

Mr. X., an acknowledged expert in his own particular field, is much in demand as a speaker at various functions. And he tries his very best to turn up at whatever function is expecting him.

The trouble is, he is apt to forget where he is supposed to appear.

As Mr. X. explained it to me, the whole matter came to a head a few evenings ago.

He had accepted a speaking engagement at Port Alberni—or was it Duncan?—or possibly Courtenay?—at any rate, Mr. X. had accepted this speaking engagement, and had made a mental note to be there, for sure. There, of course, being Port Alberni—or was it Duncan—or possibly Courtenay?

This came as a great shock to Mr. X., who deduced that his memory wasn't as good as it might be.

He brooded over the matter during the ensuing hours of the night, and decided to seek the assistance of medical science.

Came the morning, and Mr. X. confided his troubles to a physician. And the good doctor told him he should take a hormone pill, a pill which would activate certain latent potentialities locked within Mr. X.'s id.

This pill, Mr. X. was told, would repair his memory to a point of total recall.

So Mr. X. went home, and took the pill.

He took the pill just before he went to bed, and he went to sleep, but he woke up.

Because the pill was working, and Mr. X. began to remember all the things he had forgotten to do for the past two years.

So Mr. X. couldn't get to sleep until he reached out for pencil and paper, and made a list of all the things he had forgotten to do.

After which he was able to sleep.

And when he woke up in the morning, he looked at the list of all the things he had forgotten to do, and he looked at the rest of the pills, and he tore up the list, and he poured the pills down the drain.

And he intends to sleep forgetfully the rest of his life.

$50,000 Beach Plan For Gorge

Project Below Tillicum Bridge

Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee today revealed a $50,000 plan for beach and park development on the Gorge, below Tillicum Bridge.

The committee will meet with Victoria Kinsmen officials at a date to be announced to ask their participation in the program.

The beach plan, detailed by Saanich superintendent of works Henry Blakeney, calls for construction of a retaining wall to prevent beach erosion. It also includes raising of the old public beach level by 30 inches, a gravel circular road and parking area above the bluff, and bath houses with toilet facilities and concessions.

Victoria Kinsmen have shown interest in spending a portion of an estimated $20,000 bingo profits on the project.

The area was viewed this morning by Saanich and Victoria council members who serve on the joint committee. All parks under the committee's jurisdiction were visited.

JUKEBOX ALLEY BLUES

Yates Street Japes Make Cafe Men Moan

(Second in a series of four articles on the "teen-age rowdyism problem.")

By DINAH KERR

At about 3.30 in the afternoon the jukeboxes begin grinding in Yates Street cafes.

By midnight they're "all shook up"—and so are the cafe owners and waitresses.

They have to deal with some pretty stale high-jinks when their young patrons rubber-kick through the door, drop into one of the back booths and place their orders.

One of the favorite tricks designed to bring a laugh from a bangle-earringed girlfriend is to empty salt into the sugar containers.

Or they may balance the lid on top so that the next booth-warmer gets an avalanche of sugar in his coffee.

Another is to fill a glass to the brim with water, place a piece of paper over the top, up-end it quickly on the table and then slip the paper out.

Naturally—the waitresses—can't remove the glass without releasing a flood of water—and that's where the kicks come in.

Spoon Benders

These mischief-makers sometimes stay for a couple of hours or more. To while the time away, the rowdiest will bend spoons, put a fist through protective glass on individual "juke-boxes" in each booth or jam the works with cigarette butts. One restaurant replaced juke box glass five times in two weeks.

Another long-suffering cafe owner has had to replace 40 sugar containers in the past six weeks.

Proper ashrays are "impossible" to keep, he says. The petty theft is so bad that he's substituted glass casters for ashrays and removes all sugar containers from the tables on Saturday nights.

Naturally, it is always the minority that instigates and leads the trouble. But that minority can reduce a strong man to quivering frustration.

Like the hefty owner of one of the preferred hangouts. He's met them all in four years as bouncer-cashier on Yates Street.

"There used to be a time when you could see trouble before it started," he said. "You could tell the kids that monkeyshines were out and they'd listen. Now they just defy you."

Bill Buck Passing

"A few nights ago six kids ran up a bill of $3. One by one they left. Told me the other guys were paying their bill. I got 80 cents out of it."

"They seem to travel in gangs of six or seven and some of them look like pigs. Maybe they're not organized gangs but you always know who is a friend of whom. They dress alike. Everyone will wear a grey lumberjack, or heavy boots or red jackets—like that."

Biggest trouble is caused by the junior high school crowd, he said.

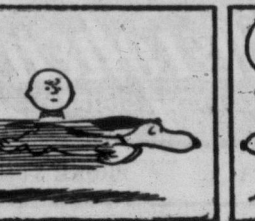

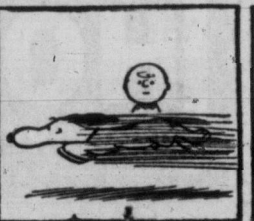

Just recently, "some young punks" zigzagged into his cafe. They were about 13 years of age and may have been exaggerating the stage of their inebriation.

Leaving, one tossed an especially foul expression at a waitress. His friends apologized for him. They'd been drinking lemon extract with their cokes, the friends said, and he'd got pretty high.

"If some mothers checked up on their kids, they'd get the shock of their lives," a waitress said. "The language they use makes sailors sound like Sunday school pupils."

At least one cafe on the street has struck back at rowdiness with a 25-cent minimum charge for coffee at the counter or in the booths for the "worst ones."

"We had to do something," the owner said. "The kids

SHOPPING GUIDE

Wise Old Owls 'Graduate' In Classic Caps and Gowns

By PENNY SAVER

With graduation days approaching, many are wanting something small and appropriate to give to the proud young graduate. A bit of fun for you, who must do the shopping, and for the receiver can be had with these novel wee salt and pepper shakers I've found. Perfect for that "little something" are wise old owls, complete with mortarboards and diplomas. Their huge be-spectacled eyes are giant rhinestones that glitter. The set is really charming, and I'm sure the young lady graduate would love them. She can use them now or tuck them away in the hope chest. The salt and pepper are yours for $4.25.

Something very pleasant to give, and to receive is candy. A charming way to buy delicious hard English candies is in plug-top glass jars, like those you see in candy store shelves. The tops of the jars are big enough for little or big hands and once the candy is gone, you can use the jars again for other sweets. Two pounds of hard candies in the attractive jar cost $2.59.

Let's roam for a moment into the hardware department of one of the downtown stores. Here are connected wooden salad servers that will complement any favorite salad bowl. The polished grained wood servers work much like a pair of scissors, and serving is amazingly easy. These are $1.49, while separate spoon and fork servers of similar polished and grained wood are 79 cents. These would be very good ideas for shower gifts.

For the high-school crowd, I noticed plastic record cases for small records. Teen-age parties usually call for guests to bring along their favorite records, and carrying them to and fro can be a bit of a problem at times. Here is a "record caddy" made much like a series of envelopes that fold up like an accordion. In the case you can put 20 records.

The case, folded, fits into another plastic bag with handle. There you are... all ready to go! An interesting gift for your teen-age friend, this record caddy is $1.45.

If you would like to know where I shopped, call me at 2-3131.

Canada Will Join 'Open Skies' Plan

LONDON (AP)—Canada today signified her willingness to participate in any aerial inspection plan which is made part of an international disarmament agreement.

Canadian delegate David Johnson told a closed meeting of the United Nations disarmament subcommittee his country would require only that the inspection plan be established on a fair and appropriate basis.

Johnson, at a sub-committee meeting which lasted only 30 minutes, did not specify what he considered the requirements of such a plan.

His statement, however, was believed to have in some measure increased the possibility of air inspection involving North America and Siberia.

Russia proposed April 30 that air inspection be established over huge areas of Siberia and the western United States and Alaska.

Premier Cancels Rupert Speech

Premier Bennett has cancelled his scheduled speaking engagement in Prince Rupert Friday night. He will speak in Powell River instead.

The change in plans was brought about by the surprise withdrawal of Social Credit nominee Arthur Murray from the Skeena riding race.

Mr. Murray did not file his candidate's papers on Monday, which was the nomination deadline. He refused to give any reason.

The premier will address a public meeting in Nanaimo tonight.

By PETER MURRAY

An unequivocal denial that Canada ever threatened "implicit or explicit" to withdraw from the Commonwealth during the Suez crisis was made in Victoria Tuesday night by External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson.

Neither had Canada ever condemned or criticized, in the United Nations or Parliament, the armed intervention of Britain and France, Mr. Pearson asserted.

900 Attend

He spoke before an attentive audience of some 900 persons in Central Junior High School Auditorium.

They heard the most lucid description of Canada's role in world affairs ever given here.

Local Liberal candidates, Dr. F. T. Fairley and Allstar Fraser, spoke on the same platform. (See story, Page 36).

In his statesmanlike address, Mr. Pearson touched on all aspects of Canada's international position, but dwelt particularly on her relationships with the U.S. and the Commonwealth.

"Because of the shift in world power, our alliance with the U.S. is taking on increasing importance. At the same time we must strive to maintain complete independence."

In the Commonwealth, Canada must do all she can to keep the family of nations—each with different interests—together. "And the Commonwealth in its present form may be disastrously weakened if we think of it solely in terms of London," Mr. Pearson added.

In between the U.S. and the Commonwealth Canada must act as a "middle power," Mr. Pearson said, helping to iron out difficulties that arise.

Canada voted with the majority in the Assembly to place the matter on the agenda. Answering criticism that Canada had voted with Russia against the United Kingdom on formation of a U.N. Emergency Force, Mr. Pearson said: "Our decisions in regard to United Nations resolutions are Continued on Page 2"

Two Socreds Quit Race In Ontario

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Two of the three Social Credit candidates in local ridings said today they have decided to withdraw from the federal election campaign.

In a joint statement, Archie L. Gillis, the party's choice in Essex East, and William F. Barton, named to contest Essex South, said their decision "in no way indicates a change or diminishment in our belief in the fundamental principles of Social Credit."

Their move was based on "the impossibility to condone actions, proposals and planks in the present program and platform which in our estimation are entirely out of line with the principles of Social Credit."

LACK OF MONEY

"Our decision has also been motivated by our inability to assume personal financial responsibility for a quite elaborate local program, which is the brainchild of the national association, and which could only be borne by candidates supported by a tremendous 'slush' fund."

The third candidate is Richard Nelson Webster, who said he has no intention of withdrawing. He is, Essex West.

Avalanche Danger In Airliner Crash Area Poses Problem

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Vancouver coroner Glen MacDonald climbed Mount Slesse today in a desperate attempt to bring down the body of at least one victim of a Trans-Canada Airlines crash, but it appeared that the danger of avalanches on the 8,000 peak would delay the recovery operation until July.

"I want to recover the bodies now if it is humanly possible," MacDonald said.

He said alpinists from Switzerland and Austria would be brought in if necessary.

Meanwhile H. W. Seagram, Trans Canada Airlines vice-president in charge of operations, was flown to inspect the wreckage of the Dec. 9 crash today.

Cold, grey Mount Slesse may be the permanent tomb for 62 persons killed in a TCA air crash Dec. 9, Canadian Press reports from Chilliwack indicated today.

All but given up for the present, and perhaps forever, is the attempt to bring out the bodies.

It was Canada's biggest aviation disaster when the North Star crashed into the mountain and exploded.

The airliner had set out for Calgary but turned back to Vancouver with engine trouble and had been missing until wreckage was discovered by a mountain climbers' expedition Sunday.

The men most intimately connected with the search for crash victims said the undertaking is too risky.

Mountaineers, RCAF air-rescue experts and RCMP advised that Mount Slesse's 7,600-foot level, where the main portion of the plane was located, should not now be disturbed.

Its crumbling 25-foot ledge could well carry down the living with the dead.

SHATTERED BODIES
It was after mountaineers made an on-the-spot inspection of this ledge Tuesday—with its tragic store of partial limbs, fuselage fragments and engine pieces—that they announced their verdict.

The formal statements came at a coroner's inquiry at Chilliwack by coroner Glen MacDonald of Vancouver.

"We have identified the aircraft," he said, "but not one person of the 62."

"The attorney-general's department is concerned and wants to bring the remains out Continued on Page 2"

HIGHLIGHTS

Here are some of the high points of Mr. Pearson's address:

"Our foreign policy . . . must be Canada first, but it can never be Canada alone."

"Canada has undertaken commitments and accepted responsibilities in the international field which would not have even been considered in the '30s."

"The greatest Canadian national interest today is the maintenance and the strengthening of peace and security."

"American power . . . is now the major source of our military security, even though it is also at times the focus of our political anxieties."

" . . . the Atlantic coalition . . . is our greatest defence against aggression today and our strongest buttress of peace."

" . . . the United States cannot take, nor indeed can any other country take, Canada's support and help for granted."

" . . . the Communists' paramount and primary objective is to weaken and break up our Western coalition, and especially to split the rest of us from the United States."

"Our greatest difficulty of . . . in Canadian foreign policy . . . arises when our Mother Country and our neighbor disagree."

Pay Raise Within Cabinet's Power

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Government Employees' Association says Premier Bennett's government could vote civil service wage increases immediately by order-in-council.

The association issued a statement today in replying to a statement Monday by the

determined by Canadian interests and if by some chance, and it very rarely happens, Russia, for consideration of its own, happens to be on the same side that we are, is that any reason why we, or anybody else, should change sides?"

As to the assertion by national Social Credit Leader Solon Low that Prime Minister St. Laurent had sent a telegram to Prime Minister Eden threatening withdrawal from the Commonwealth, Mr. Pearson stated emphatically:

"No such telegram was sent." Mr. Eden had sent a telegram to Mr. St. Laurent outlining the United Kingdom position in the dispute, and the prime minister had replied in another telegram giving the views of the Canadian government.

In summary, Mr. Pearson said Canada's overall policy in the dispute was to attempt to bring about a cease-fire which would deal with the problems of the Middle East in such a way as to prevent fighting breaking out again.

Go on Trying

"I confess that we have not yet been very successful in achieving this ultimate political objective," he said. "But we must go on trying."

Mr. Pearson described U.S. military power as the "foundation of the collective defence of the free world."

The growing might of Communist imperialism—and it is still growing—should make us conscious of the danger we would be in if we did not have this power, he said.

No two countries in the world have closer relations than Canada and the U.S.

Folly to Ignore

"There may be some who regret this," Mr. Pearson said, "but it would be folly to ignore it."

Canada insists that her partnership with the U.S. is always based on mutual respect.

Sometimes this results in our relations with the U.S. being "difficult, complicated and testing."

Mr. Pearson was loudly applauded when he stated:

"They (the U.S.) must realize that if we were once sensitive about Canada being considered merely a colonial extension of Britain across the waters, we are now even more sensitive about being considered merely a northern extension of the United States across the unguarded boundary."

When differences occur between the U.S. and Britain, Canada has no alternative but to make the "hard choice" between the two positions, or take up a separate position of our own.

Mr. Pearson concluded:

"The test of the success of a nation's foreign policy is its willingness to accept and discharge responsibility for the maintenance of peace; its success in protecting the national interest, and its prestige and position in the world."

"The present government has not, in my view, failed in its effort to meet this test."

if humanly, even super-humanly, possible."

SNOW UNSTABLE

Paddy Sherman, a mountain climber and Vancouver newspaper reporter, testified it was too hazardous at present to get "one single identifiable" body out of the wreck. He didn't think it possible that there were large enough remains of one person to make positive identification.

Another climber, Roy Mason, said "the snow mass is too unstable. It was avalanching while we were there."

It was suggested periodic checks should be made and another attempt could be started about the end of July to bring the remains out.

TCA Captain Alan Clarke, 35, his co-pilot, stewardess and 59 passengers died on a stormy Sunday night when the west-bound North Star crumpled up against the peak, 90 miles north-east of Victoria.

Until Sunday the plane's disappearance was a mystery.

PERMISSION NOT GIVEN
The RCAF said the returning airliner was flying on the extreme south or left edge of a 10-mile-wide air route. At first it was understood that the pilot had been given permission to descend to the 8,000-foot level from 14,000 feet. However a qualified source in Vancouver denied Tuesday that the pilot was given permission to descend to 8,000 feet.

Wreckage was embedded in a niche about 150 feet from the giant spire which has a precipice of gaunt, vertical granite 3,000 feet high.

Viewers of the peak estimate that if the pilot had gone only

30 or 40 feet to right or left he would have cleared the mountain.

Elfrida Pigou, a 100-pound woman, one of the two climbers who located the wreckage Sunday, was also a member of the party which made the ascent Tuesday to the rocky ridge where the main portion of the plane was found.

The party had been asked to be on the look-out for money in large denominations. D. D. Murphy, transport department official, said relatives of a Chinese passenger said he was carrying $80,000 in a money belt around his waist.

Sherman said only one quarter and two cents were found. They did not disturb the bodies to look for personal effects.

Mayflower 1,300 Miles From Africa Coast

PENZANCE, England (AP)—Mayflower II, the Pilgrim Fathers' replica ship, reported Tuesday that she was about 1,300 miles west of the African coast.

Cmdr. Alan Villiers radioed: "Running in very light trade winds. All well." The little wooden sailing ship left England April 20 on her voyage to the United States.

The Mayflower's position at noon Tuesday was 22 degrees 22 minutes north, 37 degrees seven minutes west, Villiers said.

SINCLAIR ON COLUMBIA:

Private Power Deal Never Ruled Out

NEW WESTMINSTER — Fisheries Minister James Sinclair said Tuesday he had never ruled out the possibility of federal aid in private development of Columbia River hydro.

"I wouldn't say we would help or that we would not help private development," Mr. Sinclair told reporters on his return from a campaign trip to the Yukon.

He said the province has to make the decision and put their offer forward, then we would look at it after the decision is made.

The fisheries minister said he is not at odds with Trade Minister C. D. Howe in his interpretation of federal policy on the Columbia. "We are not apart on this at all," he said.

How a "growth company" grows

Are straight hot dogs better than curved ones?

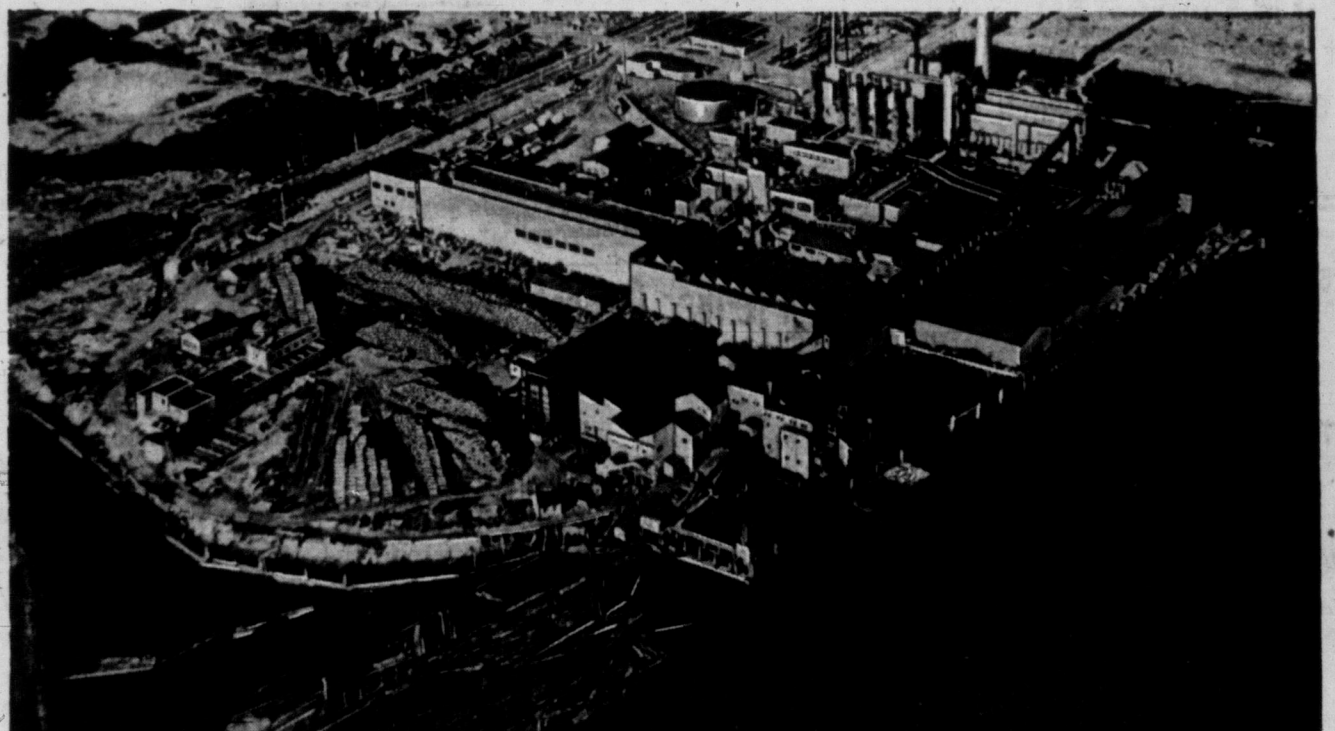

Answer: They're both mighty good eating. But the straight hot dog is skinless—and won't vary a jot in taste, color or texture. That's because it's shaped in special, sanitary cellulose casings. And it's the casing (stripped off after smoking) that makes straight "dogs" lower in cost, consistent in deliciousness.

What's in it for you? Chemical cellulose for sausage making is only a fraction of Rayonier's growth business. But this versatile raw material can actually keep many sausage meats several cents a pound cheaper on your butcher's shelf! That's because cellulose speeds sausage production and delivers to you wholesome, appetizing, fresh meats.

Thus, with ever better cellulose, Rayonier assures you real value in over 500 different products ranging from miracle fibers to hot dogs. In this way and others, Rayonier grows.

Looking behind Rayonier's growth: Some facts for the business-minded

A growing world commodity. The technical arts of the cellulose casing maker and the meat packer—plus the wizardry of cellulose chemistry like Rayonier's—must be backed up by big plants such as our Grays Harbor Division at Hoquiam, Wash., a 135,000-ton capacity mill. Here special cellulose for sausage casing is produced along with six other diversified products.

Since 1951 close to $70,000,000 have been poured into this plant and seven others in the U. S. A. and Canada, for expansion and modernization alone. Thus we are ready for new, rising demands from such growth industries as tire cord, miracle fibers and plastics. This growth-mindedness tells why Rayonier now supplies every cellulose-using country in the free world.

For still wider markets. Intensive cellulose research at three research stations in Canada and the United States keeps Rayonier out front in cellulose chemistry, often years ahead of customers' requirements for new or improved raw materials.

For example: research has recently brought in several significant developments including new silvichemicals, a field promising Rayonier additional, diversified growth in world markets.

Conservation for growth. Trees are our basic raw material. To assure our growth, and our readiness for the future's bigger demands, Rayonier conducts all-inclusive conservation programs in the Northwest, the Southeast and in Canada.

At night, we harvest mature hemlock, vital to sustained yield. Too, our advanced forestry contributes to soil conservation and abundant wild life. Thus sound timber management serves Rayonier's growth.

Saskatchewan Politics Puzzle

The Times' United Nations correspondent Charles Lynch is taking a human holiday from his New York post to follow the general election campaign in Canada. In the following column Mr. Lynch reviews the political situation in Saskatchewan.

REGINA—It is a long way from our usual stand at the United Nations to a general election campaign, although in many respects the principles are the same.

Sufficiently so that after the first three days of following the campaign here in the west we are still clear of eye and sound of mind despite the fact that western politics have some of the aspects of a jungle to one who was reared in the somewhat more orderly, if unpredictable, forest that is politics in the Maritime Provinces where it's Tories, Liberals, and "those others."

"Those others" cut considerably more ice, or in the language of the country, reap considerably more wheat out here. This is still young land by the standards of the east—be it middle east, meaning Ontario or Quebec, or far east, meaning the Maritimes.

There are old party traditions here in the west, but there has been a lot of bending and swaying going on. If the four western provinces had more than the 70 federal seats they possess, the things that have happened out here already would represent a major change in the political structure of our country. Perhaps they have; anyway the events of June 10 will tell us more about that.

From what we have seen, the Liberals are waging a confident campaign at least here in Saskatchewan, where they won five of the federal seats in the last election. The CCF won eleven, and the Progressive Conservatives one—that one being John Diefenbaker's seat in Prince Albert. Everybody here is waiting to see what impact Mr. Diefenbaker will have in his home province, now that he is the federal Progressive Conservative leader, and there seem to be as many opinions on that subject as there are bushels of wheat in the storage bins.

DEPRESSION MEMORIES

This is the province where people still talk about the depression the way some people in Ireland talk about "the troubles." The memory of low wheat prices, drought, dust storms and going on relief sits heavy with the people, despite good times, oil booms, bright new buildings along the streets of Regina and a goodly number of Cadillacs on the one-way streets that make up the arteries of this friendly and attractive city.

The memory of not having enough to eat stays with people who now have meat on the table, and whose restaurants (at least one of them to my sure knowledge) serve steaks the like of which we have never encountered.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Learning From the Crooks

LONDON—At random . . . Scotland Yard isn't above learning tricks from the crooks. Under London's new parking regulations, which include the installing of the city's first-ever parking meters, it will be up to the police to tow away parked cars that are causing trouble. They got the tow truck all organized, next thing was to solve the problem of getting locked cars open so that brakes could be released for towing. That's when they called in some of London's top car thieves to teach the coppers the best methods of picking car locks.

FOOTNOTE to piece I did recently on bad news of some London live theatres closing is the good news that we are to have a new one. Well, not quite a new one. The Queen's Theatre on Shaftsbury Avenue that was blitzed during the war is to be rebuilt. The exterior will look new and modern, with an all-glass frontage. The auditorium, little damaged in the bombing, will be kept in its original red and gold Edwardian style. It will seat 1,000 and will be ready in October of next year and will surprise strangers to London who will enter an up-to-date exterior to find an old-world atmosphere inside.

PASSING THOUGHT, based on observing our Scottie dog sitting on the front-door step contemplating life. Why is it that a dog will sit there like that and be able to go for a stroll along the street any time he feels like it, yet he doesn't? He waits until you appear

5 Roman Catholic Sisters Injured

HAGUE, N.Y. (AP)—Five Roman Catholic sisters from Montreal were injured Tuesday when a station wagon went out of control down a mountain, crashed into a boulder and rolled over. Mother Ann Marie, 65, was the most severely injured. Moses Ludington Hospital at Ticonderoga said she was in serious condition.

In a long life of research into this subject, our delving into the political situation in Saskatchewan has been done against a background of T-bones, sirloins and filets, medium rare with horseradish.

But the people remember, and they are concerned about their wheat. Wheat in speeches and wheat in statistics is a dull commodity. And in the years I covered Ottawa I never could quite understand the western obsession with the freight rates, which always seemed to exceed in fury the Maritime outpourings on the same subject.

Now, it is the question of overseas markets for the wheat that is on the minds of the people, and this matter is brought home when you talk to a man who has wheat coming out of the roofs of his barns, who has filled every available public and private receptacle with wheat, who still has most of his crop of three years ago in addition to the ones between, and is now engaged in seeding what gives every prospect of being another bountiful wheat harvest.

NO COMMITMENTS

How do you move the wheat? Nobody is going to make any rash promises on that one, least of all Prime Minister St. Laurent, who dealt with the subject in his farm policy speech here in Regina. The local Liberal candidates would have dearly loved some commitments, but they did not get them, any more than they got the promise they want that the federal government will come in on the project to dam the South Saskatchewan River, which they think would do for Saskatchewan what Nasser thinks the High Aswan Dam would do for the land of Egypt.

One gathers that the project on the South Saskatchewan is no more likely to get an early start than the one on the Nile.

This is the birthplace of the CCF, the one province in which the CCF won the bulk of the federal seats in the last election, the one province with a CCF government. It is generally admitted here that the CCF party has the smoothest working political machine in the province—they are fast off the mark with their nominations, they are smooth and sure-footed with their publicity and advertising, they have the workers organized on every level.

All of these things will be going for their candidates throughout this campaign, and it is for the others to bring them down if they can. Join the handwagon of the party in power, say the Liberals. Two, let's make it three, say the Social Crediters referring to the fact that they govern in British Columbia and Alberta, and have ambitions of becoming powers in the land of Saskatchewan. And the Progressive Conservatives say, get behind your own boy, John Diefenbaker. It should be a fine, large election here once the boys get the wheat seeded and can start attending meetings.

and says let's go for a walk, then wild excitement about being taken for a walk that he could easily have had on his own. Is it that dogs probably have the most highly developed sense of companionship of any animal?

NEWS FROM GERMANY of an uninvited Nazi visitor Britain had in 1941—Rudolf Hess, who dropped in (literally) on May 10 of that year with his crackpot scheme for getting the warring leaders together to shake hands and make up. If you had wondered what has become of him, he is sitting it out with three other war criminals in Berlin's Spandau Jail. Sixty-three years of age this week, he is there for life and is known to his jailers as "Mad Rudl." He varies his moods of sitting brooding over a dozen and one imaginary ailments with goose-stepping around his eight-foot square cell and shouting "Heil Hitler!"

PUZZLE CORNER: For those familiar with cricket, here's one that has them all scratching their grey matter here . . . Before the last match of the season two bowlers have both taken 28 wickets for 62, with an average of 2.2. In the last match A takes 4 wickets for 34 and B 1 for 25. A's total is 32 for 96, average 3. B's is 29 for 87, also averaging 3. How come? Don't ask me the explanation. It's been driving me crazy for the last three days. It's even worse when you start the two of them with 50 wickets for 100 and in the last match A skittles all ten of the opponents for 140 and B takes none for 50—yet B winds up the season with an average of 3 and A's average is 4!

Cloudy today with sunny periods this afternoon. Mostly sunny on Thursday. A little warmer Thursday. Winds light. The low tonight and high Thursday at Vancouver Airport, Abbotsford and Nanaimo 50 and 70.

West Coast: Cloudy with a few sunny periods today and Thursday. Little change in temperature. Winds light. The low tonight and high Thursday at Estevan Point 45 and 58.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Flowers for Shade Have Wide Variety

The annual request for a list of perennials to flower in partial shade or on the north side of a building comes from more gardeners each year.

This is probably due to many new homes being built on large lots with tall trees creating the condition, or homes on single lots within the shadow of the next house.

Many perennials prefer these conditions, providing the soil is well prepared by digging, and adding humus as necessary.

After the spring bulbs, Meconopsis Baileyi will flower in a shady spot. Its sky blue poppy flowers are a lovely attraction. Polemonium coeruleum, three feet with lavender blue flowers, and Iberis sempervirens, nine inches, with chalky white flat heads of bloom, will provide color for weeks.

Dicentra spectabilis (bleeding heart) is a dainty early flowering perennial which should be left in its shady position for some years without dividing.

A little later in the season, we can have the meadow rue, Thalictrum dipterocarpum and T. aquilegifolium. The foliage is somewhat similar, but the airy sprays of mauve flowers are dissimilar. Both are equally attractive and will reach five or six feet in the shade.

Trollius (globe flower) loves a shady spot with some sun and plenty of moisture at its roots as does Caltha palustris, the double form of which is the more beautiful.

Lithrum rosea (loosestrife) with long wands of tiny pink flowers, and Cimicifuga racemosa with spikes of white flowers, both require partial shade and ample moisture to make a fine showing.

By late summer, Astilbe japonica, with its many named varieties in colors of pink, deep crimson and white, will have

U.S. GROWS 8,000 A DAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The population of the United States is growing at a rate of about 8,000 a day and is nearing 180,000,000, the census bureau reported Monday. In the seven years since the regular 1950 census the population has jumped by nearly 19,500,000—more than the population of Canada.

Comedians' Daughter Sues for Divorce

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Sandra Jean Wilhoite, 22, daughter of comedians George Burns and Gracie Allen, this week filed suit for divorce from Young Wilhoite III, 26, heir to a Texas fortune. The complaint charged cruelty and asked $1,375 monthly for alimony and child support. Mrs. Wilhoite said her husband recently quit his job, saying he intended to "loaf" for a while.

Following is the text of External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson's address at Central Junior High School Tuesday night:

There is no doubt that there has been a great change in the principles and in the conduct of Canadian foreign policy in the last 20 years; particularly since Second World War. Canada has undertaken commitments and accepted responsibilities in the international field which would not have even been considered in the 30's.

This is a recognition not only of our new and increasingly important place in the world, but also of the limitations imposed on independence by interdependence, by the necessity of maintaining peace through collective action with our friends.

The tragic experiences of two world wars have shown us that national action alone is not adequate for this essential purpose. Our foreign policy, of course, must be national in the sense that it must reflect Canadian opinion, and protect and promote Canadian interests. It must be Canada first, but it cannot be Canada alone. It must also recognize, however, that the greatest Canadian national interest today is the maintenance and the strengthening of peace and security. This is truer than ever before now that the alternative to peace may be all-out war, which would mean all-out universal destruction.

Strive to Work With U.K., U.S.

Canada must strive especially to co-operate with the United Kingdom and the United States. This is not easy in the complexities and difficulties of international affairs today. Indeed, it is not possible when they do not co-operate with each other. Therefore, Canada should on all occasions strive to help in avoiding and removing Anglo-American differences.

On some occasions, however, we may have no alternative but to make the hard choice between a British or an American position, or to take up a separate Canadian position of our own. When we do have to make that kind of decision, it should be determined by what is best for our own country. But that determination should always be made in the light of the overriding necessity for the preservation of peace with freedom and honor; an objective which, as I have said, neither Canada nor any other country, not even about our status, but we have not ceased to worry lest the policy of other governments might set all of us into trouble. That worry is inevitable in a coalition of states of varying size and power, and in a time of tension and danger when we face a ruthless and powerful potential Communist aggressor whom we have good cause to fear.

Now, however, it is Washington, rather than London, that is our main preoccupation. The shift of super-power in the free world to the United States, and its dominant international position, have made us more and more conscious of the difficulties of our relationship with our neighbor. But the growing might of Communist imperialism should also make us even more conscious of the danger we would be in if we did not have this American power as the foundation of the collective defence of the free world. It is now the major source of our military security, even though it is, at times, also the focus of our political anxieties.

It is, of course, perfectly normal, indeed it is unavoidable, that we should be intensely preoccupied with our relations with the United States. In those relations we are at times especially at election time, accused of being a satellite of the United States.

Let's get this straight. There are no two countries whose relations, because of a variety of factors—geographic, strategic and economic—are closer, or bound to be closer, than those between Canada and the United States. There may be some who regret this, but it would be folly to ignore it and worse than folly to attempt to alter it by policies of isolation or of encouraging other alignments at the expense of the Atlantic coalition, which is our greatest defence against aggression, and our strongest buttress of peace.
